Why Kill Her?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

RUSSIA'S government forbids coloring Easter eggs or selling any Easter tokens. But housewives manufacture their own Easter supplies, and religious worship goes on, in concealment, which makes it the more tense, and dangerous for those that oppose it.

IN JERUSALEM, Jews and Mohammedans celebrate religious holidays at the same period, protected against violence by machine guns set up at strategic points on main thoroughfares.

HERE in America, Good Friday found the churches filled. All religions may worship as they please or not at all, and believe in anything or nothing, and it is nobody's business.

Separating church and state, on the American plan, has worked well so far.

THIS morning the Orthodox Greek Church is performing one of its most sacred rights at the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem.

The Associated Press thus describes the celebration:

"Young peasants execute a wild sword dance in the center of the rotunda of the Holy Sepulchre.

"Clanging bells announce the approach of the Greek orthodox patriarch. He arrives, followed by ecclesiastics all gorgeously clothed.

"They march three times around the Holy Sepulchre. Then the orthodox patriarch, removing his gorgeous robes and jeweled mitre, enters the door of the tomb.

"An Armenian ecclesiastic accompanies him. All lights are extinguished.

"Presently the trembling hands of the aged patriarch, and a hand of the Armenian appear through small holes in the tomb on either side, each holding a blazing brand, believed by the vast majority to have been lighted by fire coming down from heaven. A great shouting is heard.

"As the crowd rushes forward, each would be first to light his candle at the sacred fire, thus assuring eternal salvation."

MR. C. M. WOOLLEY, builder and head of the American Radiator Company and director in other great corporations, has, framed in his office, the following extract from one of Francis Bacon's essays. Young and old should read, cut out, keep and think about it:

"Young men are better to invent than to judge, fitter for execution than for counsel, and fitter for new projects than for settled business, for the experience of age in things that fall within compass of it directeth them, but in new things abuseth them.

"Men of age object too much, consult too long, adventure too little, repent too soon, and seldom drive business home to the full period—but content themselves with a mediocrity of success."

Judging by his energy in starting new things, collecting and combining and merging everything in sight, Woolley must be very young.

ABOUT the Italian giant, Carnera, many things are interesting, but most interesting is the difference between his waist and his chest. That wide difference will appeal, pathetically, to middle-aged Americans that put their feet on chairs to tie their shoe laces.

Carnera measures thirty-eight inches around the waist, fifty-eight inches around the chest, expanded. Tell that to your "successful" friend, whose measurements are the other way round.

HIGH finance continues to discuss a Sears, Roebuck-Montgomery Ward merger. It would be a sizeable mail order octopus, the house doing a business of close to a billion dollars yearly.

However, the word "octopus" frightens the country no longer. Big business, well conducted, means more efficiency, greater economy, lower prices.

If the people haven't brains enough to watch a few big businesses, they certainly wouldn't have enough to watch thousands of small businesses.

BISHOP AIDS SON HELD IN KILLING

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 19.—A thickset, athletic-looking youth was to be arraigned in Homicide Court today, charged with beating to death a 73-year-old printer.

He is James Mathew Maxon, Jr., former Columbia University journalism student and son of the Episcopal bishop coadjutor of Tennessee. His middle-aged landlady and three of her middle-aged boarders accuse him of "running wild in a drunken craze" and beating to death with a chair David Paynter.

The father is the Rt. Rev. James Mathew Maxon. He is on his way north to aid his son and it was reported he will engage Martin W. Littleton, noted lawyer, formerly of Tennessee, to act as his son's defender.

DRINKING GIN

Maxon, who admitted he had been drinking gin "that makes you do crazy things," said he did not remember just what happened when he returned to his West End boarding house early Friday morning. He did not remember jerking a few gas jets from the wall, breaking up the furniture and finally, as his accusers charge, of trying to attack Mrs. Hickey and then raining blow after blow on the aged printer when Paynter tried to protect the woman.

Police who arrested Maxon, who recently had worked on a New Jersey newspaper and had been trying to sell short stories, admitted they did not know exactly

Napoleon Necklace Quiz Starts Monday

NEW YORK, April 19.—(INS.)—A grand jury investigation into the sale last February of the $400,000 diamond necklace Napoleon gave his second wife, Marie Louise, in 1811, will open here Monday. The necklace, owned by Archduchess Marie Therese, of Austria, was sold to D. M. Michel, New York jeweler, for $60,000, by an emissary of the duchess.

Archduke Leopold, of Austria, now a resident of New York, will be among those questioned, the office of the district attorney said today.

KREMER HURLS IN ST. LOUIS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—Manager Jewell Ens, of the Pirates, has selected Remy Kremer to pitch as the Buccaneers open warfare here this afternoon against the Cardinals. His opponent on the mound was undecided early this morning, although it was thought either Flint Rhem or Sherdel would get the assignment.

Yesterday, in Cincinnati, the Pirates finished up by knocking down the Reds, 5 to 3, with North Side Steve Swetonic coming valiantly to the aid of Jess Petty to cop the honors. The veteran Ira Flagstead had a hitting spree, getting two doubles, a triple and a single in five times at the plate. Flaggy is favored to force Fred Brickell out of the lineup.

Jacob Mayer, Movie Man's Father, Dies

GLENDALE, Cal., April 19.—(INS.)—Jacob Mayer, 83, father of Louis B. Mayer, motion picture producer, was dead here today, following an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

NAVAL TREATY ASSURED BY TOKIO O.K.

Senate Committee Scrutiny Dims Hoover Hopes for Speeding Ratification

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

LONDON, April 19.—An announcement from Tokio by the Central News Agency that the Japanese government has approved the draft of the London treaty, without alteration, was received joyfully today by all the delegates to the naval conference.

It is now assured that the treaty will be signed Tuesday morning at the final plenary session.

Safeguard Clause Sent To Japan for Scrutiny

TOKIO, April 19.—(INS.)—The safeguard clause, protecting the powers signatory to the tripartite section of the London naval limitations treaty from excessive building by non-signatories, has been transmitted for the scrutiny of the Japanese government.

The text of the clause provides that if the present treaty requirements of national security of any of the signatories in respect to war vessels are affected by new construction of non-signatory powers that the signatory affected will notify the other signatories of the increases necessary in its own tonnage.

If one party to the treaty is thus forced to build, the other parties will be entitled to make proportionate increases in their own navies.

Speedy Ratification Plea of Hoover Hits Snag

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—President Hoover's hopes for speedy ratification of the London Naval Treaty before the adjournment of Congress were at very low ebb today.

In fact, unless Congress delays its adjournment beyond the scheduled date, June 1, there appears little chance of the treaty receiving the Senate's blessing before December.

Both Republicans and Democrats looked and listened attentively as Senator Hale, (Rep.), Maine, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, hoisted the first storm signal against the pact of London. This signal might be described as of the warning variety

Buchanan, Ex-Labor Congressman, Dies

CHICAGO, April 19.—(INS.)—Frank Buchanan, former congressman and once a prominent figure in national labor circles, is dead here today at the age of 67. Buchanan, who represented the Seventh Illinois District in Congress from 1911 to 1917, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday.

Buchanan's six years in Washington were filled with conflict as a result of his economic views. A grand jury in New York City indicted him in 1915 for conspiracy to foment strikes and restrain shipments of munitions from the United States to foreign nations. The jury disagreed at the trial.

INDIA REBELS RAID ARMORY, SLAY SIX

Wires From Town Cut, Train Wrecked to Block Rush Of Guard to Battle Scene

CALCUTTA, India, April 19.—(AP.)—A group of 100 Indian Nationalists today attacked the police armory at Chittagong, across the Mieghna Estuary, east of here, and killed six of the defenders. The dead included one sergeant major.

Before assaulting the armory, the insurgents cut telephone and telegraph lines leading out of the city, which is of about 30,000 population, and derailed a train about 40 miles away, blocking the railroad line.

A detachment of Eastern Frontier Rifles, under command of Lieut. Col. Dallas Smith, was ordered from here to Chittagong to handle the situation. They left Calcutta this morning.

GUN SHOPS GUARDED

In Calcutta strong guards were established at all gun shops, while armored cars and armed police took up positions in strategic locations. The authorities ordered an immediate search of the city for arms and ammunition.

The headquarters of the All-India National Congress Committee was raided and 17 arrests made. Five of those arrested belonged to the Bengal Provincial Congress Committee and six to the South Calcutta Congress Committee.

An official government bulletin was issued regarding the attack.

"The government regrets to announce that the railway and police armories were attacked the night of April 18 and the morning of April 19 by a body of insurgents estimated to number 100 and were damaged. The details are not yet fully known, but from information received up to the present it

DUCHESS GOES ON PROBATION

LONDON, April 19.—(INS.)—The Duchess of Leinster, the former stage favorite, May Etheridge, was today placed on probation for two years and ordered to report her behavior every month to a police court magistrate. The duchess was found guilty on Monday of having attempted suicide.

Early in the morning of April 1 the duchess was found unconscious in the kitchen of a shabby Brixton flat she had rented with Stanley Williams, a young chef. The gas jets were turned on. She has been estranged from the duke for some time, receiving a small allowance.

CHICAGO, April 19.—(INS.)—Her airplane search failing to locate Ralph Fisher Skelton, missing airman, Miss Betty Cook, wealthy Evanston society girl, today set out by automobile to search Western Michigan for Skelton's plane.

Miss Cook has already led several futile aerial searches.

Easter Paraders To Have Clear, Crisp Day

Light frost, with the mercury between 35 and 40, will usher in the day, he asserted, with likelihood that the temperature will rise to 60 in the afternoon, making ideal weather for the traditional fashion parade.

Blossoming fruit trees and flowers will suffer little, if any, because of the frost, Brotzman said.

GIRL FIGHTS BANDITS

MARGARET TIMM

BANDITS ROUT GIRL PURSUER

Aiding in the pursuit of three holdup men, who, a few minutes before, had robbed her and a companion of a truck load of clothes, Miss Margaret Timm, of 808 Fourth street, Beaver Falls, this morning was forced to drop the chase when fired on by the robbers. The holdup and chase took place in the Ohio River boulevard, near Glenfield. Three suspects were captured on the North Side after the machine bearing the loot had been wrecked.

Miss Timm, an employe of the Howard Cleaning Company, of Beaver Falls, and Robert Morrison, of the Regent Apartments, Beaver Falls, were taking a truckload of clothes to Beaver Falls from a cleaning plant on the North Side.

THREATENED WITH GUN

The bandits halted the machine near Glenfield, and one, who flourished a revolver in her face, took the young woman's purse. Morrison was relieved of a watch and ring, and he and Miss Timm

INTERURBAN PASSENGERS ESCAPE

Suspect Arrested After Plot Fails Despite Explosion And Plank Put on Tracks

An attempt to wreck a Washington interurban trolley car, attributed to a crank, was made early today when a stick of dynamite, attached to a cap, exploded under the trolley an instant before the car struck a plank that had been placed across the tracks at Hultz stop.

Cab windows of the street car were shattered and one woman of a dozen passengers on board fainted, according to the report of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

SUSPECT HELD

A man giving his name as Ira Galloway, believed from literature found in a suitcase he threw away, to be a student of psychology, was arrested near the scene and is being held by county detectives.

The car, in charge of Motorman Peter Ackerman and Conductor Joseph Tobicdyk, was outbound on what is known as the midnight run. The headlight revealed the plank across the tracks as the car neared Brookside and Ackerman slowed down.

An explosion occurred under the cab and a second later the front wheels plowed into the plank, 14 feet long, a foot wide and two inches thick, hurling the plank from the tracks.

WOMAN SUFFERS SHOCK

Mrs. Helen Reed, 30, of Brookside Farms, returning from the theater with her sister, Miss Edith Addleman, a teacher in the Mt. Lebanon schools, fainted, according to the railways company report. She was revived and removed to her home, where she was reported suffering from shock. Other passengers were frightened but unhurt.

Mrs. Reed, according to relatives, has not fully recovered from injuries suffered in a collision between two Washington cars on the Arlington avenue bridge, August 10, 1928, when a score of persons were hurt.

The damaged car was run into the Castle Shannon car barns and the passengers transferred to another car.

Galloway gave detectives several addresses, they said. In two envelopes were found pamphlets treating of seances, the detectives reported.

At least two storm areas lie along Lindbergh's contemplated route, and the Flying Colonel announced he would not leave until weather reports are favorable.

Daylight Time April 27 Proclaimed by Kline

Mayor Charles H. Kline today issued a proclamation recommending that daylight saving time become effective from Sunday April 27, until Sunday, September 28.

The custom, the Mayor asserts, is dictated partly by necessity of adjusting the interchange of business between Pittsburgh and other cities, and partly to give all classes of people opportunity for evening recreation. City officers and employes will conform to the new time, the Mayor says.

SIX SENATE PROBES IN PROSPECT FOR SUMMER RECESS

SHIP BOARD, BANKS FACE INQUIRIES

Postal Lease, Slush Quizzes Open Soon; Rail Mergers, Lobbying Under Scrutiny

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Senate today appeared headed for an unusual quota of important investigations during the long, hot months of summer.

With two inquiries under way, two more authorized and two others recommended by standing committees, six investigations may be furnishing headlines to the nation during the coming recess of Congress.

The lobby and railroad consolidation inquiries started weeks ago, the senatorial election and post-office leasing investigations have just been ordered, and the Senate may authorize inquiries Monday into the activities of the whole Federal Reserve and national banking systems and into affairs of the United States Shipping Board.

SLUSH QUIZ CONSERVATIVE

The campaign fund committee has organized to probe campaign contributions and expenditures in all senatorial primaries and elections. The investigation, however, will be very conservative, and the committee will act only when it has information indicating slush funds are being used to decide contests.

The postoffice leasing inquiry may get started next week, with Vice President Curtis scheduled to name a special committee of five senators Monday to conduct the investigation.

The committee was directed to inquire into some 6,000 leases for temporary postoffices, scattered throughout the nation, in every state.

MAIL CONTRACTS ATTACKED

The Shipping Board inquiry was proposed by Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, and approved by the Senate Commerce Committee. McKellar cited charges of Comptroller General McCarl that the board had sold ships to private lines for $43,000,000 and collected only $15,000,000, without showing any intent to collect the remainder.

This inquiry would include also the negotiation of ship mail contracts and charges that much favoritism was shown in the award of the contracts.

Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), Virginia, a former secretary of the Treasury, proposed the inquiry into federal banking practices. The staid Senate Committee on Banking and Currency recommended it. Glass proposed investigating the practice of Federal Reserve Banks in discounting brokers' loans for speculative purposes.

FINAL DRESS REHEARSAL—By Quin Hall

WICKERSHAM'S VIEWS CHEER ANTI-DRYS

Hint of Modification Step For Temperance Hailed; Hoover Silent on 'Doubt'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Opponents of prohibition in Congress hailed with satisfaction today the speech of George W. Wickersham before the American Society of Newspaper Editors here yesterday, in which the Law Enforcement Commission chairman hinted that modification may become necessary in the interests of temperance.

Wickersham declared:

"To secure the maximum abstinence from use of liquor it may be found desirable to modify the Eighteenth Amendment or the national prohibition laws."

So far as he is concerned, Wickersham made it clear he had reached no final conclusion on that point yet, but the intimation was plain that if the future consideration of conditions by his commission leads him finally to the conclusion that modification is advisable he will not hesitate to recommend it.

LA GUARDIA'S VIEWS

Representative La Guardia, New York, had this to say:

"Mr. Wickersham's speech is a natural, logical reaction in the light of a study of the prohibition question. As his investigations go further into conditions, the idea will be translated into definite recommendations."

Representative Schafer (Rep.), Wisconsin, said:

"His suggestion confirms my belief that any reasonable person, wet or dry, who studies the question must reach a decision that repeal or modification is necessary. I say cut the strings and repeal the Volstead act, and if necessary compromise by legalizing beer."

WHITE HOUSE SILENT

The White House had nothing to say about Wickersham's speech. Nor did it have anything to say about the belief expressed by Capt. W. H. Stayton, a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that President Hoover was beginning to doubt whether prohibition ever could be actually enforced.

Stayton's opinion was expressed in a litter which was dfug up by the Senate Lobby Committee, and presumably represented only his personal view of the President's belief.

ALIEN WEDDING NO BAR TO WOMEN

Cable Bill Allowing Them To Retain U. S. Citizenship Will Be Passed in House

By WILLIAM S. NEAL.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The House will pass a bill next week granting equal rights to women under naturalization laws, according to a decision reached by leaders, it was learned today.

The measure is backed by women's organizations as the apex of their drive to remove all discriminations against women from the nation's law books. It is sponsored by Representative Cable (Rep.), of Ohio.

All American women who marry foreigners would be permitted to retain their American citizenship under the terms of the bill, a right now granted only to men.

RETAIN CITIZENSHIP

It also provides that American women who adopt the nationality of their alien husbands and later decide to return to home shores may re-enter outside of the present quotas which restrict immigration.

A further provision enables women who have surrendered their citizenship to retain it by a simple procedure before a naturalization examiner, without red tape.

"Under the present law, an American citizen may marry a French girl, live in France all his life, and still retain his citizenship," explained Cable. "His children also would be American citizens.

ASIATICS NOT INCLUDED

"This is not true with women. They lose their citizenship and are presumed to be aliens if they reside two years outside the country."

Proposals to extend the legislation to provide that American women marrying Japanese, Chinese or other Asiatics ineligible to American citizenship could continue to claim the protection of the Stars and Stripes have, however, been abandoned.

Strong opposition upon the part og Pacific Coast members of the House caused militant equal rights forces to agree to let the law stand unchanged.

EQUALITY FOR ALL

"The American countries already favor the principle of equality as to the citizenship of men and women," explained Cable. "Five countries of South America have already granted equality. My bill is an additional step by the United States to place men and women on the same basis."

The American delegation attending The Hague conference on international law recently made an unsuccessful attempt to commit European nations to the principle.

COURT WEAK, COPELAND ASSERTS

N. Y. Senator Urges U. S. To Remain Free From Any League Entanglements

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—In an exhaustive analysis of the League Court, Sen. Royal S. Copeland, (Dem.), of New York, declared last night the futility and weakness of the Court in settling international disputes.

The Senator, in a radio address over the Columbia System, traced the history of the court from its inception by the League of Nations and declared the United States should remain free from its entanglements.

POINTS OUT EXAMPLE

One of the subjects justiciable by the court would be the matter of "advisory opinions," Copeland pointed out, adding, as an illustration:

"Italy is a proud nation; Mussolini is an aggressive, dominant character. Suppose he should decide that our restrictions against Italian immigration to the United States are offensive to Italy. In consequence, Italy might make known that she desires an opinion of the court as to whether or not our restriction of immigration is not an offense against her dignity and the rights of her citizens to live where they please.

"With no disrespect to Italy or any other friendly country, we should say at once in no uncertain terms: 'We would not consent to have that question passed upon.'"

RUSSIAN POSSIBILITY

Still another question was presented by the Senator in the event that American adherence to the League Court ever become a reality.

"In 1867 the czar of Russia sold to the United States for $7,200,000 in gold all the Russian holdings in North America, the territory of Alaska.

"Since that time the people of Russia have destroyed the monarchy and taken over the sovereignty of their own country. Suppose they were to argue that the czar had no moral or legal right to alienate sovereignty over Russian territory, that he had bartered away what was not his to sell?"

DRY LAW ANGLE

Not even the matter of internal legislation on such matters as the manufacture of alcohol would be beyond the jurisdiction of the court, the senator pointed out. Canada could complain to the court and France could also make representations to the Geneva tribunal.

6 HURT IN MINE UNION BATTLE

ROYALTON, Ill., April 19.—(AP.)—Six men, five miners and a peace officer, were wounded, one seriously, yesterday in the first shooting affray between rival factions of the United Mine Workers of America since John L. Lewis, international president, attempted to oust Illinois state mine officials last October, and which resulted in the setting up of a dual organization headed by Alexander Howat, of Kansas.

Constable John Hicks, of Royalton, was struck on the head with blackjacks, and he also received a bullet wound in the right leg. Hicks was attacked when he attempted to quell the skirmish.

Weather Conditions.

It is raining this morning along the Atlantic coast from New York to Jacksonville and conditions extends as far west as Ohio and Eastern Tennessee. From Ohio westward to the central plains the skies are mostly clear, due to a high pressure area, centered over the Mississippi valley. A low pressure area, centered over Northern Colorado and Southern Wyoming is producing cloudy weather over the Rocky Mountain and the Western Plains states, with scattered light rains and snow in North Dakota.

There was a decided drop in temperature over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region, little change in the Mississippi valley and rising temperature over the western plains and in the Canadian Northwest. The high pressure area is developing eastward and will bring fair weather over this section tonight and Sunday, with slightly colder tonight and rising temperature Sunday.

River Conditions.

Additional rains over the Allegheny basin caused a further slight rise in the river. Stage at Franklin is 7.5 feet. Parkers Landing, 8.8; Lock No. 7, Monongahela, 11.5; Pittsburgh, 15.3; Dam No. 4, 12.7; Dam No. 6, 13.9; Dam No. 9, 13.5, and Dam No. 12, 11.6. The dams are down.

The boys were given a hearing yesterday before Magistrate Robert C. Calhoun. Frank Lucta, 48, a junk dealer in Twenty-fourth avenue, McKeesport, was held on a charge of having stolen goods.

appears that one sergeant major, one Anglo-Indian and four Indians were shot dead by the insurgents.

WOMEN IN DRY DRIVE

JALALPUR, Bombay, India, April 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gandhi, wife of the Mahatma, or "Great One," today urged the Women Nationalist Volunteers who are following her in a campaign for Indian independence, to go into the interior and uproot the palm trees from which Indians derive the constituents for their alcoholic drinks.

Mrs. Gandhi, accompanied by a group of women devotees of her husband and his creed of nonviolence, passive resistance and civil disobedience, marched to localities frequented by habitual toddy drinkers today, singing songs exhorting the residents to abandon strong drink.

The volunteers went from house to house and urged wives not to give their husbands food if they continued to drink liquor. Many wives told Mrs. Gandhi that they themselves drank only occasionally, but she urged them not to drink at all.

GREGORY'S WIFE GIVEN ASHES

Mrs. Alberta Gregory, the young widow of William Gregory, the victim of the barrel murder, today received the ashes of her husband to scatter to the fourw inds.

With her mother she appeared at the morgue to claim the ashes. She had wanted to scatter them in Uniondale Cemetery, but, refused permission, she said she would go to Mt. Lebanon. Her husband, having a premonition of death, had asked that his ashes be scattered, the widow said.

There were no developments today in the investigation of the murder. Jakale Blazkovac, 37, has been charged with being a material witness to the killing. He is said to be a partner of Philip Fazio, of Clairton, who is charged with the murder.

BISHOP AIDS SON HELD AS KILLER

what took place at the brawl in which the aged man was killed. Detectives said there were discrepancies in the stories told by the three boarders and the landlady. Too, they were puzzled by Maxon's admission that he was "drunk," had heard a quarrel downstairs and ran down to the basement, where he remembered "hitting some one" but not Paynter.

TELLS OF FIGHT

"I do not recall a thing about it all, except running down there in the basement where I heard a fight, which I tried to stop," said the prisoner. "I'm just awfully unhappy about this on father's account."

Young Maxon had taken his room at Mrs. Hickey's boarding house on Sunday. Six months ago he came to New York after attending Knox College and the University of the South at Sewanee. He was said to have worked for a time on a newspaper in Chattanooga. He entered Columbia here but left college in February.

Recently he had attempted writing short stories. A short story of newspaper life called "Deadline" and its rejection slip were found in his room. In the roller of his typewriter was a new story, which began:

"G. Bernard Tompkins lay murdered on the floor of his bedroom in a luxurious apartment in the East 50's."

GIRLS TO BE QUIZZED

He had been sitting before the typewriter trying to go ahead with the story when he heard a fight downstairs, he told police. Mrs. Hickey, however, claimed she was awakened when she felt the hand of the youth on her shoulder and other boarders said they found Maxon in the landlady's room, twisting her wrist.

The fatal fight followed, according to the youth's accusers.

Several young girls, friends of Maxon, were to be questioned today. A girl's fur coat was found in Maxon's room, and a letter signed "Cherie" was discovered in one of his pockets, police said.

BEFRIENDED BOY HELD IN THEFT

August Smith, 16, befriended by Oakland police on two occasions, once more faced a hearing in Police Court, this time on a charge of robbery. On two other occasions he had been arrested as a vagrant, but was released and given financial assistance by police.

A few weeks ago he was found sleeping in a vacant house in Fifth avenue and told police he was homeless and without friends or money. Officers requested the magistrate to discharge him and then they purchased him a complete outfit of clothes. He was given a job and pocket money.

Two weeks later he quit the job, spent his money and began roaming the streets, police say. Once more he was arraigned in court and discharged. Yesterday he was arrested near the American Restaurant, 113 Oakland avenue, after the owner reported a $22 robbery. Smith had been given a job opening the establishment in the morning and it is alleged he looted the cash register.

NAVAL TREATY IS ASSURED

which precedes the hoisting of more serious signals—hurricane, for example.

HITS CHANGE OF POLICY

Calling attention to the policy of the Coolidge administration and the Navy General Board not to build anything except 8-inch gun cruisers, because this type is peculiarly adaptable to American needs, Senator Hale said the American delegates at London apparently have set this policy aside.

He said the policy of the Congress was insisted upon by the last administration at the Geneva conference, and has been supported by practically all responsible naval opinion. If it is to be set aside, he added, the advisability of so doing must be demonstrated.

TO SCRUTINIZE PACT

It is Hale's intention of having the treaty gone over with microscopic thoroughness in his committee by naval experts as soon as it is received.

While his committee is looking into the technical aspects of it, the Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, could be considering it from the broader standpoint of American policy.

Hale asked his colleagues not to commit themselves blindly to support the treaty before it can be assayed and analyzed. This was a somewhat significant move, for already some senators were getting aboard the "band wagon" and starting to praise the results of the London conference.

were ordered to walk down the road.

The robbers had finished loading the clothes in their machine when Miss Timm and Morrison returned in the machine of William Trimble, of 7180 Brighton road, Ben Avon. They had hailed Trimble and appealed for aid. The bandits sped off, and Miss Timm, Morrison and Trimble followed. They were forced to give up the chase when fired upon.

At Irwin and North avenues the bandit car collided with the machine of August Pflinger, of Forest avenue, Bellevue. Pflinger told police two of the robbers boarded a street car.

RADIO HELD AID TO PAPERS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(INS.)—M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company today told members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in convention here, not to worry about radio as a competitor of the press.

"The utmost that can be expected in radio presentation of news is a bulletin service, which, if intelligently handled, can materially promote the sale of newspapers as well as promoting certain special events which lend themselves to radio broadcasting," he said.

He said sports offered the perfect type of news for radio broadcasting and advanced his belief that a play-by-play description of such an event over the radio does not diminish its reader interest in the newspaper "because the people want to know what the qualified observers have to say about it."

Boy Saves 5 Companions Near Death in Dark Sewer

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(INS.)—Five lads who sought adventure in a sewer in fashionable Cleveland Park owed their lives today to the quick wit of a 9-year-old boy who heard their feeble cries from a manhole.

The hero is John Cragoe. The victims of their own temerity are Louis Snyder, 13; Kimball Scribner, 12; Ned Denton, 13; Bill Johnson, 13, and Carroll Bilbrey, 12.

Armed with flashlights, the five boys entered a sewer opening near the Bureau of Standards Building. Unable to turn around, and beginning to feel the effect of the sewer gases, they crawled three blocks before being ovrcome at a manhole. It was then that the Cragoe lad heard the faint cries. Inquiries on 'Ground Hog' Cure Swamp Doctor

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 19.—(AP.)—The next time Dr. Cyrus C. Sturgis speaks over the radio—if he ever does—he is going to be explicit to the point of boredom.

It's all on account of the difference, as the doctor patiently explains, between ground hog stomach and groundhog stomach.

Recently Dr. Sturgis explained over the radio his new treatment, developed at the University of Michigan, for pernicious anemia. To save time, he referred to the base material used in the treatment as "ground hog stomach."

"Since then" the doctor said, "I have received hundreds of inquiries asking where in the world I get all the groundhogs, whether there is any chance of hiring out as a groundhog catcher, and so on."

The professor meant that stomachs taken from porkers are ground and used for treatment. He says he has no use for the stomachs of those small animals which live in the ground, and, according to belief of some persons, act as weather forecasters.

ADMITS LONG FRIENDSHIP WITH GIRL

Salesman Also Questioned When Police Learn About Baltimore Hotel Party

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Two men, both of Warsaw, Va., were being held at Arlington County (Va.) jail today for investigation in connection with the murder last week of Miss Mary Baker, whose violated body was found in a culvert near Arlington Cemetery. They are Mervin Sisson, 35, a hardware salesman, and Julian E. Gallagher.

Sisson, married and father of two children, has been meeting Miss Baker clandestinely for several years, the police assert. After questioning him, the commonwealth's attorney, William C. Gloth, of Arlington County, ordered the arrest of Gallagher in a Richmond, Va., hotel.

Gloth said Sisson seemed to have an air-tight alibi, but that he had admitted going to Baltimore March 22 with Miss Baker, Gallagher and another girl, where they registered at the Maryland Hotel. He insisted he was at home with his wife and children the night Miss Baker was killed.

Gallagher was to be grilled today.

Police say they have letters from Sisson to Miss Baker, indicating jealousy, and that he admits a long friendship with her and members of her family at Oak Grove, not far from his Warsaw home. Sisson represented his hardware firm in the territory from Norfolk to Baltimore, and included Washington in his rounds.

HARRIS JOINS IN SUPPORT FOR DAVIS

Malone Only Leader Failing To Make Known Support Believed Backing Pinchot

James F. Malone, former president of Council, today was the only important political leader who has not fully revealed his alignment in the state primary battle.

State Senator Frank J. Harris indorsed the Davis-Brown ticket in a broadcast last night over WJAS. He indorsed particularly Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, candidate for United States senator, but said he intended to give Francis Shunk Brown, running for governor, and all other candidates on the slate "whatever influence I may possess."

CAREER OUTLINED

Harris traced Davis' history from the time he was brought at the age of 7 to this country by his parents, until his successive appointments as a member of the cabinets of three presidents of the United States and declared:

"The candidacy of Secretary Davis gives to the people who have worked so hard and earnestly for humane and progressive legislation and for the consideration of all things which concern men in every walk of life, an opportunity to cast their votes for one who may be depended upon always to put into office those elements of sympathy and consideration which make for the welfare and contentment of every man, woman and child in the state."

PINCHOT SUPPORT SEEN

Malone has been quoted as saying he would "vote" for Davis and his friends make no attempt to deny that he will support former Gov. Pinchot for another term.

In the event Malone announces for Pinchot, conservative politicians admit the former governor would carry Pittsburgh and probably Allegheny County. Malone is said to have inherited the independent following that supported the late Judge Richard W. Martin and the combined strength would put this county in the Pinchot column, judging from past records, observers say.

INDORSED BY CHAIRMEN

Republican chairmen of North Side wards, responding to a call of Dr. F. H. Fredericks, "chairman of North Side chairmen," last night indorsed the Davis-Brown ticket at a meeting in the office of Alderman Ray Schneider, 405 East Ohio street.

Six thousand travelers are expected to leave the city for former homes and scenic excursions by the time the peak is reached.

4 DIE AS PLANE HITS WIRE

NEW YORK, April 19.—(INS.)—Fog, aviation's greatest enemy, today was blamed by investigating authorities for the crash of an airplane late yesterday near Hackensack, N. J., in which four persons met death. Trapped in the fog, the plane pilot for more than an hour sought land, finally driving the ship into high-tension wires, which instantly electrocuted the four.

One of the victims was Count Henri de la Vaulx, famed pioneer in the air and founder and president emeritus of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the world's governing body on aviation records. The elderly French aviation enthusiast had specially chartered the Canadian Colonial Airways monoplane at Montreal in order to spend the week-end in New York.

LINK FIRE WITH ATTIC KILLING

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 19.—(INS.)—While Mrs. Walburgia Oesterreich and Otto Sanhuber were held in jail today awaiting trial on charges of slaying Fred Oesterreich, the woman's husband, authorities were investigating a fire which swept through Oesterreich's Milwaukee factory in 1927.

Oesterreich was killed here eight years ago. His wife said that he was shot by two burglars. She was later held on a murder charge, but the case against her was quashed. Recently Sanhuber, who said he occupied a secret attic room in the Oesterreich home, confessed it was he who shot the manufacturer. He has pleaded "not guilty" and "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Mrs. Oesterreich refuses to make a statement concerning the killing of her husband or her relationship with Sanhuber.

Authorities believe investigation of the Milwaukee fire may disclose something having a bearing on the murder probe.

OBERAMMERGAU, April 18.—The greatest change in Oberammergau, where the passion play will be given starting May 11, is in the theater itself.

From the outside the theater still retains its box-like shape; it is the inside that has been done over to make it one of the most modern show houses in the world.

All the technical arrangements—dressing rooms, scenery that sinks into the stage floor, orchestra pit, revolving stage, glass covering over the stage—have been worked out by experts.

The 11 main settings are mounted under the stage on rollers. The entire auditorium is covered by a roof—no sun shades or umbrellas needed by the public. But the proscenium is still outdoors; the glass covers only the center of the actual stage.

The reconstruction of the theater, started in 1928, will cost over $250,000. Road construction into Oberammergau has cost about $200,000. In all, the town had to borrow $500,000 from America for preparations connected with this year's passion play.

Burgomeister Mayr estimates that with good weather and no political complications, the receipts from the play this year should pay off the debt and pay the salaries of the 800 actors and persons working on the play.

The man on whom the greatest responsibility in connection with the play depends is Johann Georg Lang, director, producer, sculptor and vice-burgomeister.

Lang personally supervises the rehearsals every evening from 8 to 10:30 o'clock, and on Sundays in the afternoon and evening. He supervises the making of costumes—he himself purchased the material and sent it to the dyers with specifications.

"Mutt Parade" Features Washington Dog Show

By CHARLES A. EARLEY,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 19.—Aristocratic canines from scores of district and national kennels were strutting their stuff here today for the benefit of dog fanciers at the annual show sponsored by the Washington County Kennel Club in the Coliseum.

As an added feature there was scheduled a "mutt parade," in which several hundred youthful dog fanciers were to lead through the streets their "whelps, hounds and curs of low degree." Judging which began yesterday when the show opened, continues late tonight.

In the fox hound class, "Darby's War," bred by J. V. Fulton, took first prize as the best in its class.

Second prize winner in this particular competition was "Frankling," entered by the Westmoreland Hunt Club, Greensburg. Judge Louis Walter will select the prize dog of the entire show tonight, when the exhibit closes.

Both the long and short of kennel classes are being shown. The largest canine, "Megahan's Flash," a Great Dane, is owned by Frank Megahan, of Carnegie. He stands more than three feet in height. Perhaps the smallest is the toy Fox Terrier, entered by Doris Mae Flori, of Monessen.

A loving cup for the best dog in the show will be donated by Washington County Kennel No. 12, Ancient, Honorable, Transcendental and Effersesvent Order of Yellow Dogs, a group of local men. It will be presented with appropriate ceremonies tonight.

REHEARSING FOR ASPINWALL CLUB'S PLAY

MRS. CHARLES F. COLBERT

MRS. J. J. FREY — MRS. HUGH BOYD — MRS. K. W. LEWIS — MRS. C. V. KEIL

Members of the Aspinwall Woman's Club rehearsing for the play, "Mail," by Essex Dane, which they will give in the annual amateur players' contest to be conducted April 29, 30 and May 1 and 2 by the Pittsburgh Drama League.

Groups Representing Five Schools to Participate In Drama Contest

FIVE groups representing Pittsburgh schools will take part in the sixth amateur players' contest, which will be held in East Liberty Carnegie Library for four nights, beginning April 29, under auspices of the Pittsburgh Drama League.

The Gargoyle Club of the Shady Side Academy, which has won several awards in previous contests, will present a manuscript play called "Signals," written by their dramatic instructor, Ray E. Hurd, a director of the Pittsburgh Drama League. William Rea and Cleveland Rea will be in charge of the staging, and the cast will include Richard Horning, Robert McCune, Matthew Stanley, James Arensberg, James Hamilton, Edward Bald and Harold Miller. The story is cleverly woven around a series of signals which two boys decide upon at play and which prove to be a means of rescuing one of the boys from real danger.

The Nemo Players, a group of recent graduates of the Perry High School, will present "The Under Dog," a drama by Robert Middlemass, a new play, which has never been seen in Pittsburgh. It is based on the experience of a man who has served a prison term and the ending is both surprising and touching. The members of the cast, Dunny Dickson, Althea Brooks, Katherine C. Levy, William F. Allison and J. C. Spahr Hull, will be directed by Mr. Hull, who is a member of the faculty of Perry High.

Happy Ending

THE Chessboard Players, under the direction of Freeman M. Hammond, of the Pittsburgh School of Speech, will be seen in Hildegarde Flanner's drama, "Mansions," in which the principal character is a boy whose life has been made unhappy by a domineering woman, but who seems at the end of the play to be about to carry out his own plans and ideas. Mary Rose Burns, Virginia Freed, Jeanne Farmerie, Ola M. Rex and Regis Connor are rehearsing for the three roles in the play, but the cast will not be decided upon finally until the dress rehearsal.

A charming fantasy, "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Down, has been chosen by the P. M. I. players. Edith Malette will play the part of Pierrette, Mildred Gilchrist Pierrot and Thelma Fout will represent the Maker of Dreams, who by means of deft suggestions brings a fluttering romance to a happy ending.

The Senior Dramatic Club of Langley High School will appear in another fantasy, "Three Pills in a Bottle," by Rachel Lyman Field. In this play a boy is gifted with the power of reading character, so that he sees persons not only as they appear to others but also as they might appear if their real spiritual nature were revealed in their appearance. The members of the cast will be Edwin Fairman, Betty Libby, Everett Cox, Joseph Wasel, Jack Grimes, Paul Grace, Charlotte Grow and Thelma King. The play will be staged by George Baine and Dorothy Godfrey. DOTS ADD NEW DASH TO MANY SPRING FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 19.—You'll be seeing a lot of dots before your eyes this Spring, but don't worry for it merely means that dotted dresses are massed on the sartorial horizon. Dots of various sizes from pin head to dollar size seem to be tremendously liked this season, both in printed and embroidered versions.

Despite the many patterns obtainable today, the dot design retains one of the first places in patterned materials. It is a design that becomes all types but especially the young, and offers an amusing and effective color contrast without elaboration. So let dots add a dash to at least one of your Spring frocks, and be quite a la mode without much difficulty. Black and white, blue and white, beige and red, beige and black are some of the more important color combinations in the domain of dots, all are good and effective and oftly colorful. Crepes, both silk and wool, chiffons, georgettes are some of the materials being treated to a diet of dots.

THE smartly simple type of street frock seen just now over here is essentially charming in its youthful appeal. Crisp lingerie adds just the necessary dash to tweed and woolen frocks cut on tailored lines. Pleats, strategically placed, add animation to the skirt that is of sensible walking length.

Both of the sketches shown today are of dresses that are essentially wearable in town or in the country. The first is of a light-weight, fine-patterned gray mixture tailored frock from Patou. The cape dips to a deep point behind and over it is worn a double bertha of white organdie with a crisp jabot. The mousquetaire cuffs are stitched flat to the sleeve along the top and flare in points along the side. Inverted pleats, stitched part way down give width to the skirt. The belt is worn just above the hips.

THE second sketch is one of Poiret's newest and nicest models. It is of crepe, the black dots printed on a beige ground, and matching the pipings that add such smartness to the model. An important note is to be found in the use of a collar and cuffs of natural straw, matching the wide brimmed hat and flat purse. A patent leather belt clasped beneath a large black rose, completes the unusual details of a very original ensemble.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 19. THE Literary Digest loves to straw vote on subjects that everybody is arguing over at the time. Well, here is one that is creating more dust than the one they are voting on now. So I propose they start a straw vote at once on the following:

"Will people vote on prohibition at the polls, (where they have to sign their names) the same as they do in a straw vote? Please vote either yes or no."

You see the Digest put in a middle vote, (the modification plan). Now both the wets and the drys are claiming that vote. So let's get started straw voting on my plan, no confusing planks. Yours,

WILL.

Mr. Bercovici Finds He's "It" When Boys Page Mr. Bolsheviki

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 19.

HIS name is Konrad Bercovici. He writes. He has sold a yarn to Universal, "Gypsy Love Song," which will co-star John Boles and Lupe Velez.

Mr. Bercovici is in Hollywood. Stopping at a hotel. He is a rather stocky set man of average height; black haired, black moustached. Quite heavily moustached. Flowing moustache. The kind that makes soup an event. And a cracker-jack writer. Which has nothing to do with the moustache.

Lupe Velez

I'm quite sure though that the moustache has something to do with the way bell hops at the hotel page Mr. Bercovici. Wells Root W K screen scribester, went into conference with Mr. B. regarding "Gypsy Love Song." Wells is going to shape it to a picture. Whilst they conversed in the lobby a bell hop emerged from the shadows droning:

"Call for Mr. Bolsheviki. Mr. Bolsheviki."

Mr. Bercovici smiled. Excused himself. Answered the summons. Returned. Resumed the conference with an air that indicated if bell hops insist upon making his name a political organization, it's oke by him.

PORTRAYS OWN LIFE

IT WAS news to me—but then I shamble far in the rear of current events—to learn that Mary Lewis' initial vocalloid for Pathe will be autobiographical. Miss Lewis will vivify her own life on the screen. Small town girl. Develops a voice. To the big city. Reaches the Follies. Her voice discovered to have operatic calibre. Off for Paris. Study and pleasure. Operatic debut at the Metropolitan. A hero somewhere around. End with uncensorable clinch and kiss.

FLARES INTO RAGE

FIREWORKS: Director Ernst Lubitsch was rehearsing Jack Buchanan, Jeanette MacDonald and other players in his forthcoming operetta, "Monte Carlo." The players rehearsed in a hall devoted to line reading. After a time, there was silence. Everybody took advantage of the lull to study lines. Suddenly, an exclamation split the silence. It came from Miss MacDonald. Miss MacDonald's face was contorted with rage. She exclaimed a bit more and flounced from the hall.

Miss MacDonald

Investigation followed on the burst of merriment from the remaining players. Reason for Miss MacDonald's flare: She had just been told that the hair dresser she wanted was occupied at another studio, caring for Kay Francis.

Dear me, the tribulations of the celluloid art. . .

INDEPENDENT GIRL

FRANCES Beranger, 18-year-old daughter of Clara Beranger (Mrs. William De Mille), arrived in town last eve. Miss Beranger has been studying thespian technique at Sargent's in New York. She has contracted to play at Elitch's Gardens, a W. K. stock company in Denver, for the summer. Miss Beranger is an independent youngster. She flatly refuses to capitalize her mother's position in pictures. She intends making a go of it on her own. She will.

UKULELE LEADS HERO TO GIRL'S ARMS IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"High Society Blues," happy film musical romance, opened yesterday in the Aldine. It is another of those Janet Gaynor-Charles Farrell love affairs. Like "Sunny Side Up," it dresses them both in modern and smart clothes and has them breaking into song every now and then.

Mr. Farrell goes about strumming a ukulele and singing into pretty Janet's little ears. And Miss Gaynor goes about in a snappy roadster and keeps her little ears wide open for Charlie's songs.

The story has to do with a Western family's attempt to crash the tea rooms of the ultra and classy society folks in the East. This family, which includes Farrell among its numbers as the son, settles in a spoofy mansion right in the center of the aristocratic district. But they don't go over so well with the society crowd. And Ma, in the person of Louise Fazenda, running to the neighbors with home-made pies, doesn't increase their popularity. The hero gets his girl and a French count, originally slated to be her wedded partner, finds love elsewhere.

An atmosphere of wealth and aristocracy prevails in the settings. There is an element of youth and happiness to the romance and the song numbers.

The cast includes Lucient Littlefield, Hedda Hopper and Joyce Compton.

BROWN-LIGHTNER FUN FARE IN WARNER FOR GUESTS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Warner Brothers, big shots in the motion picture world just now, gave a baptismal party last night in the one Pittsburgh theater they consider worthy of bearing their name. We have known the former Grand as the Warner for nearly four months. Perhaps the dedication party now is an afterthought — perhaps it was merely to impress upon the folks of our fair city that the Warner still is the Warner. Or the Warners may just have wanted to give us a party in gratitude for having given them the idea that gave them millions and put them on top of all the holly in Hollywood.

SEE NICKELODEON

It was not far from where the Warner Theater stands that one of the Warner brothers, according to legend—or two, maybe—stood watching people going in and out of a store-room in Smithfield street. It was the world's first nickelodeon, as the strange intruder in a world of amusement that was all stage quickly came to be called by a public eager to see a show for a nickel.

This Warner brother—or maybe two—watched the people going in. They, if two, took out their watches and timed the nimble nickels (oh, nickel, what noble power then was yours!) that were passed in. Then the watchers passed in. And out—to count again.

Enough! Its a business, this nickel grabber! So back to Youngstown to enter into it. The rest is history.

No matter what the reason, the dedication of the Warner was made a marked occasion. The theater was closed throughout the day so it could reopen, all bedecked, at a fixed hour—8:00 o'clock—to admit special invited guests and the general public to the high spot of the proceedings, a showing of the new Vitaphone film, "Hold Everything," a photoplay version of the stage production of the same title. It features two clowns, male and femme, Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner, who have been making people scream in recent pictures in which they have forged to the front rank of film funsters. They still make 'em scream.

"A COMEDY SMASH"

"Hold Everything" is called by the Warner Brothers "a comedy smash." It is. It is advertised as all technicolor. It is. The audience saw one of the funniest boxing matches ever, with Brown the winner. It also saw a most exciting set-to, with Georges Carpentier, playing the romantic lead, as the heroic victor. Sally O'Neil was seen as his sweetheart and Dorothy Revier also was prominent. Miss Lightner sang several comic songs.

Among the special guests attending were Mayor Charles H. Kline and mayors and burgesses from nearby places, who greeted the audience from the lobby by radio. They previously were entertained at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel.

Safety Fund Drive To Open With Dinner

Taylor Allderdice, chairman, will preside at a dinner in the Chamber of Commerce, Monday night, which opens the four-day campaign of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council to increase its annual budget by $40,000 a year for five years. The dinner will be attended by workers from Allegheny, Beaver, Armstrong, Fayette, Westmoreland and Washington counties.

At a meeting of representatives of the West Penn Power Company in the Keystone Athletic Club yesterday it was revealed that the entire list of employes of the company has been organized to work in the campaign.

Kennywood Tonight Opens Dance Season

The first dance of the season will be held in the Kennywood Park pavilion tonight. Nirella's "Kennywoodians" will furnish the music.

Izzy Cervone's Band will offer four concerts, afternoon and evening, in the park tomorrow.

JOLSON'S "MAMMY" IS WELL DONE—BUT MADE TO ORDER

By GEORGE SEIBEL

With superlatives thundering at you through a megaphone, you feel it is your duty as a human being to weep like a street sprinkler when Al Jolson sings "Mammy." And, of course, you must laugh till your suspenders creak at his gags when he's end man in the minstrels.

So let us do our duty in the Stanley and Enright and hang the suspenders! But it must be admitted that the duty is to Al Jolson and not to "Mammy."

This latest talking picture is made to order from the title to the bitter end. Everybody has a mother—according to natural history and the song writers—so "Mammy" will stir everybody's heart. And nearly everybody has been hopelessly in love, so Al must be hopelessly in love too.

ALL AS IT SHOULD BE

Put the hero into a minstrel show, where he can sing often enough, and grind out a plot that presents all as it should be. Much excellent workmanship has gone into the making of "Mammy," and a mere modicum of inspiration.

The best moments are an operatic medley in which the minstrels sing "Yes, We Have No Bananas" as an anthem to music of Verdi and Offenbach. Tully Marshall as a hobo stealing a ride with Al Jolson, escaping arrest for murder in order to see his "Mammy" once more, makes another good incident.

With people like Lois Moran, Louise Dresser and Lowell Sherman, this picture has a really good cast. And it is undeniable that the native warmth of Jolson's personality, with the appealing tones of his vox humana, will always get across. So it is everybody's duty to blubber and giggle. We did our darndest, but even the Irving Berlin arias did not cause us to forget our umbrella. Yet there are moments, night pictures of the moving train, that are marvels of photography, and other moments, like Jolson's happy drunken scene, that overflow with genuine comedy.

HERE ARE CLEVER DOGS

The stage show is entitled "Puttin' on the Dog," and there are nine beautiful and well-trained dogs in it—to say nothing of George Ali, whose canine impersonation is funny enough to make Cerberus grin over all three faces.

Sammy Cohen is the principal mirth-maker of the stage show, and he is capital. Dave Broudy and Bernie Armstrong have a musical duel, which turns out a draw. It is a very entertaining show—but the blue ribbon should go to George Ali.

On the Enright stage, Jay Mills' "Farewell Week" is being observed. A number of featured entertainers appear on the bill.

SMART SET, COWBOYS UNDER MOVIE MOON IN THE PENN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Movie moonshine is brightening up the Penn screen. It is in the form of a talkie, or rather musical romance, titled "Montana Moon." It is all about a modern dancing daughter of the wide open places and one of those he-men cowboys of the great open spaces who meet and go into the traditional movie clinch.

The picture entertains in a pleasant sort of way. The laughs come often, the thrills once in a while and the song and music every now and then.

Joan Crawford, a more mature Miss Crawford than we are used to, has the star role. She portrays a millionaire's daughter, who weds a Montana cowboy and then sets out to rig him up in full dress suit. And John Mack Brown plays the hero, a Western lad, who has a head full of old-fashioned ideals. When one of the smart boys of the Smart Set kisses Wife Joan, Husband John Mack rises up and socks the fellow in the chin. Which makes Joan so mad that she chases John out of the house.

LONG FACE, BY JOAN

However, Joan really cares a lot for that oldfashioned cowboy of hers. After she gets over the hysteria and anger, she registers a long face and looks quite sad. And is she tickled when the happy fadeout finally arrives. She is smiles all over when she and her man, accompanied by a troop of lusty-singing cowboys, gallop into the future.

Benny Rubin, who'd look more at ease in a derby, is in the cast sporting one of those big sombreros. Ukulele Ike Edwards also takes to the chap and spurs and herds up a lot of chuckles. Karl Dane is there too, completing a trio of comic musketeers.

SOME OLD RITZ BOYS

"High Speed" is the stage show. It features the Three Ritz Brothers, who take turns at the master of ceremony antics and who come out with their old chatter, their old dance steps and their old yellow, green and vermillion suits. Paul Romos puts a couple of midgets through some neat balancing and acrobatic stunts. A blonde girl sings and another blonde girl dances. Added to all this is music by the stage band and steps by Chester Hale Girls.

A new face appears before the organ and from the organlogue you get the idea that Dick Liebert is absent because of illness.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

NEW YORK, April 19.

NO DOUBT you think when Summer trips to town
That I in turn will wend my way to you,
And though my negative may bring a frown,
I'm forced to say your thoughts are far from true;
So many years have found me April's fool
I really think it time I took a rest,
For stern subjection to her iron rule
Has taught me that indifference is best.

So, run around with all the lads you choose,
And break their hearts in your delightful way;
I'm very sorry that I must refuse
To join the only game that you can play;

I've made some glowing plans for Summer, too,
And, searching them, I find no trace of you!
—The Perfect Phool.

Gag

Chico Marx, of the Four Marxmen, tells of the small-timer whose specialty in the four-a-day theaters was the eating of 15 hard-boiled eggs at ever performance. Not only did he eat the 15 eggs but he sang at the same time. After the fifth day, or the twentieth performance, the chump had to quit the program.

"Golly," said the manager, "I knew all along that if you ate that many hard-boiled eggs every show you wouldn't be able to fill out the week."

"Heck," was the devastating retort, "it ain't that. I lost my voice!"

In Fewer Words

Rarer than a day in June is the type of girl who used to hide in the bathroom to steal a smoke.

Merciless Fact

Vaudeville conditions being what they are, the following contrib from Bob K. London isn't hard to believe. Bob avers he overheard two actors swap this repartee in front of the Palace.

"As a good Jew are you observing the holidays by eating matzoths?"

"Matzoths? I'm lucky I've got bread!"

Nathan on Marriage

Now and then George Jean Nathan is confronted by reporters who interview him concerning reports that he plans turning groom. And if he does marry Nathan will be confronted by this philosophy, which he penned several years ago. "Marriage," he wrote, "could take away my precious privacy, my present ability to go whenever I wish to, my present agreeable habit of making more agreeable engagements at the last moment and breaking less agreeable ones at the same time, my perfect equanimity of mind, my intense dislike of life insurance agents and my freely voiced credo that there is a slightly more charming woman just around the corner."

A Swiftly

One of the recent show failures robbed most of the cast of their regular wages. Some of the alleged talent were given checks dated ahead. One fellow whose specialty flopped harder than Argentinita's annoyed the others by boasting:

"They didn't get away with much on me. I took a check and $100 in cash!"

"Say," sarcastically snapped a fed-up listener, "even if the check bounces back, your're paid!"

Observation

Far be it from us to enter any controversy about chorus and show girls being ladies. They probably are. But in one of the later places the other yawning several lassies were the guests of a local who let loose a barrage of profanity that most likely would have given the earache to your sister, wife or mother. These ladies of the shows, who probably would call a cop if you were offensive, made no complaint all night. Instead they tolerated the vile language which you never even hear in the waterfront barrooms.

It remained for the cigaret girl in the night club to reveal some good breeding, however. When the "sport" let her have some of his filth she banged him on the jaw, hurled her tray at him and then walked out of the place and her job.

It's little things like that that make big paragraphs like these.

What-the-Baby-Said Dep't

One of the season's tourists to Miami, who just "adores darkies in their native setting," approached a colored tot of 5 and said:

"What's your name, little boy?"

"Grover Cleveland Jackson?"

"My! How nice to be named after a president," she trilled.

"A Pres'dent, whut's dat?"

"Goodness, son, you don't know what a President is? Haven't you ever heard of George Washington?"

"Shuah," chirped the child, "he's muh brothuh!"

He's Punny That Way

Capsule Criticism

The Paris Boulevardier makes our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics Department:

"We are told that the New York stock crash brought great suffering to Balieff. We sym-pathize, particularly when we remember the last 'Chauve-Souris' opening in Paris. We sat through it, and we, too, suffered greatly."

Miau!

A prominent playwright was being "rushed" by a phickle phrail at an apartment affair the other night. The gal who knows her Broadway (and what Broadway knows about her!) has a record (which you can't play), so naturally the others amused themselves watching her operate. The gal rolled her wicked orbs at the playwright and after the sixth round of pash milk they were necking in a secluded corner of the parlor.

The gossips commenced their dirty work.

"Hmmmm," hmmmm'd one cat, "I see that Pearl is in love, again."

"She's not in love," flipped the other, "she's in debt."

Boomerang

It was one of those undressing room quarrels and two terpsichorines were at it again.

"Oh, you and your big shot friends," said the first, "I wouldn't trade all of yours for my movie star friend whom I have eating out of my hand!"

"Huh!" sassed the other, "what's so grand about knowing Rin-Tin-Tin?"

Add Similes

Kin Hubbard's: "It seems like, next t' a bull terrier, nothin' holds on like a feller with a damp hand." . . . Robert Roe's: "Monotonous as a million $1 bills." . . . Bugs Baer's: "Mean as the man who insisted on sleeves with his vest." . . . T. Holcroft's: "He looked as stupid as a poet 'n search of a simile." . . . Anon's: "Ashamed as a fox caught in a trap," and "Brief as a gold-digger's prayer."

Vagrant Tootsie Reveals Mail Robber

The imprint of Slay's incorrigible digit, protruding from a hole in his shoe, was the clue by which federal officers traced the theft of a mail sack valued at $600.

THE origin of marionettes and puppets has been lost in obscurity. They held a prominent place in the lives of the people of ancient India.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

Chickie's Visit to Office Makes Barry Angry

CHAPTER LXIV.

CHICKIE shrank against the wall, unable to take her eyes from the blaze of Barry's.

In the stark cruelty of the moment she saw within the office another man—Tufts. And Tufts glanced at them in amazement, his expression narrowing as though it said: "Ah—I see!"

Barry crossed the threshold, pulling the door sharply. The whiteness of his face deepened to a leaden paint; his lips shook. And for an instant he stood so, his eyes denouncing and burning her.

She turned her head swiftly, putting up her hand. She wanted to run—beat down this shame rising in such multitudinous waves—covering her.

Then he—coming—seizing her arm, hurrying her down the corridor, rasping in a low, furious scorn: "What do you mean! What do you mean by this—coming here—"

She felt herself rushed along in a withering tumult, her mind going blind. She struggled. She wrenched from him, throwing back her head, saying in a strained, frightened tone: "Stop! I only came—I came—I wanted—"

He dropped her arm then, saying in a thick, hot voice: "Lord stoop to this! Come down to spy on me—" He wiped his forehead, scorn blazing anew over his face: "What do you mean doing this!"

She leaned against the wall—abject and mute—beating about frantically for some defense. "No—I came—I wanted to see you—"

"Oh—come on—get out of here—want Tufts to come along—"

The elevator whizzing up the shaft stopped abruptly. A little man, operating it, poked out a jolly head, his eyes bright, crinkling. He said: "Going down, Mr. Dunne?" Barry nodded, helped her into the car. And she smiled vaguely—all these details flashing with grotesque unreality on her thought.

Start for Home

As she stepped from the elevator and he held her arm, a warm, overpowering weakness charged over her, bowed her down. She wanted to lower her head—cover it with her arms—run wildly. She said: "Let me go! Don't hold me! Oh, you will—I say, let me go—"

But he led her to the machine, opened the door.

She shook her head: "No—I won't—"

"I'll take you home—get in." He looked about uneasily, pushed her.

She sank into the corner—taking up as little room as possible, turning her head from him.

He drove. She wondered in a remote, shivering way where they were going—what he would say. She looked over the side of the car and in a frantic, wild self-pity, fancied herself under its wheels. Easy—that would be easy—

They were going over the bridge and she could see the water and a million lights, all yellow sparkling across the bay.

He glanced at her and waited.

She looked upward. The clouds were massy, black, flung out across the heavens as though some giant artist made the scene. Then the clouds, like some majestic curtain, parted and in their rift was a luminous amber and the green of waters, pale, but lighted. The beauty smote her, sent a melting through her heart. And she wished him not to know.

Finally he said: "Why did you do this?"

"I don't know—you see—"

Defense Cowers

"You didn't believe me! You thought I went to that dinner. Lord, I can't believe you'd stoop to this—"

"No—I didn't! I wanted to see you. I thought you'd be finished. We could take a ride—" Now that her voice was found, that it came tremulous and eager she looked at him—"Oh, you see, I never thought you'd take it so—you frightened me—"

Her defense cowered, turned faint before the coldness; the scathing in his searing eyes "Lord! Add lies to it!"

It struck her sharp like a sword; like lightning splitting her mind. She snapped the door of the car, went to dash out.

He pulled her back. She flashed in a frenzy: "Let go! You let me go! I will—" She had a wild idea to hurl herself under a car. His arm bound her. She tried to beat it off: "I will! You let me go. I don't care—"

He said stonily: "Don't get excited. You can go home if you want. We can start now. It's up to you—"

She hunched down, covering her face with her hands: "You're cruel! Oh, so—I did it! Yes! I don't know why. I was wild. Everything. Frightened. Oh, now you're hating me—you look so. I wouldn't do this to you. No matter what you did! No—Let me go. You can't stop me. Ho-hold me here! How long? When you're gone I can come back alone—anywhere—"

She grew shrill, incoherent. And suddenly turned her head against the seat, terrible little moans rushing to her lips.

He put his arm about her: "Well—this won't do any good. No use now. Don't cry about it! Why—well it doesn't matter. I don't care. I never thought you'd do a thing like that—why should you? I've tried to be square, haven't I?"

Wall Between Them

His words drummed down to her across a century of pain. "I don't know how you could! I've never lied to you. But you'd come sneaking down there—"

"Oh, don't—"

"Well—you did anyway. Tufts saw it! It's shameful—"

She put his arm from her. And now a calm that was heavier and more unsupportable than frenzy came like a weight. It was a still thing, yet it throbbed and had voices. She listened to it and to him.

"I can't stand this—that's all. We can't get by with it." And each time that he recalled her coming, he seemed the more aghast—the more infuriated: "What right had you? How could you? Lord—it's sordid! I never dreamed you'd stoop to this—"

She gave a little broken cry: "No! And did I? Oh—you think I dreamed that I could ever be brought to this. Oh—do you? A year ago?—Even months ago—Do you? I wonder if you think that?"

He drew in his mouth, sinking his teeth against it.

She went on: "No! Now you say I stoop to things. Oh, yes! And you hate me—"

He slumped down heavily, pounding the steering wheel with his fist. "Yes—you're right. It's my fault—all of it—Lord!"

And after a long while: "Well—it's done now—"

Each sentence builded between them a wall—a cold insensate thing. She felt driven into a void—an empty desolation.

Takes Chickie Home

"Take me home—don't say any more. I see—well—"

He kept pounding his fist, like a dirge. "I don't see what to do."

She repeated helplessly: "Never mind—oh, let us go—anywhere."

But as they turned toward home a terrible faintness passed hotly through her. She whispered, "Barry—Barry."

He said "Well."

"I don't know what to do—you feel so—just the same"——

"Don't bother—what of it"—

"And tomorrow"——

"Well—oh, I don't care—I can't help it now."

They were at the door. She held her head down, looking at her hands, that she could see but faintly in the dark. She said, pitifully: "You have no love now? None?"

He didn't answer.

She touched his arm, ran her fingers down it. "It seems strange, Barry. I never thought—you seem so far away—well"—

He took her hand a moment. Then he pressed it. He repeated again and again, "Oh, well."

And suddenly he grabbed the key from her hand. He said: "Go in. Tomorrow will be time—tomorrow we can talk."

She smiled. Tears poured down her cheeks. She laughed. "No, we won't—I know. Will you kiss me?—do."

Easter Lilies

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

EASTER brings thoughts. Long, long thoughts. Serious ones that wonder and hope. Gay ones that believe and take note of the buds and blooms, the air of renewal, the bright throngs flocking to the bells that call "Come to church."

The artist eye likes the bloom and the color; the artist ear the clang of bells. It turns from tall Easter lilies, snowy and symbolic, and thinks how like them the young girls are, out in their new frocks like new blossoms stepping out on the fruit trees. The artist soul ponders on lilies and young girls and wonders if there are many more sights lovelier than a pretty girl in an Easter frock and bonnet in a church on Easter Sunday!

Whether the artist goes to church on Easter day or takes his small boy to a country hill-top to picnic near to God's sky, the roll of the organ is in his ears, the bells are sweet in his ears and from beginning to end the beautiful story of Christ's babyhood, childhood, boyhood, manhood, his life and death that was not death, repeats itself in his mind. And the word "Resurrection" fills his heart with a throng of thoughts that have one theme—high hope.

Whatever you believe, these are good words for a day that means hope and renewal....

"Not with the old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness: but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth."

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

The Cold That Hangs On!

YOU should not neglect a cold. Every persistent cold is a menace to life.

DR. COPELAND

If a person is really well, if he is properly fed, free from undue fatigue, and functioning normally, then he ought to be safe from "catching cold." A cold, then, denotes lowered vitality and probably the presence of an infection of some nature.

It may be traced to intestinal poisoning of the system from constipation, an infection of the sinuses, diseased tonsils or diseased teeth. You may have just picked up a germ in a crowded conveyance, or in a room poorly ventilated.

Neglecting a cold in its first stages—and too many do this foolish thing—often results in some really serious condition. If the cold persists after the usual few days, stringent methods must be taken so that it will not develop into one of the more serious trouble— influenza, sinus trouble, pneumonia, and even tuberculosis.

Unfortunately, colds are so common that they are not taken seriously. Many persons think they are of little importance. The matter of colds is really of such importance to public health that a widespread study of their origin and combative treatment is now being made.

All sorts of colds of the influenza type are highly infectious and readily passed from one person to another. These usually yield to proper methods of treatment quickly. Treatment must be taken in time. The warmth and quietness of bed is the very best method of treatment to pursue. The body is then kept at an even temperature and rest enables the body to recuperate more quickly.

Keep other persons from the room. In this way you protect the members of your family and friends from "catching" your cold.

A neglected cold often develops into trouble of the sinus cavities. There is an almost continuous nasal discharge, sometimes thick and other times just a watery discharge.

This may very often be relieved by applying a 10 per cent solution of argyrol to the nasal passage. Take a wooden toothpick and twist about it layers of cotton, making a tampan about the size and length of a cigaret. Let the cotton project a quarter of an inch over the end of the stick to guard the point and to prevent wounding the tissues of the nose. This is dipped into the argyrol and passed far up into the nose, where it is left for half an hour.

If this is done daily it will usually relieve the symptoms in a short time. If the condition does not grow better or if it is painful, skilled medical care is needed. Where there is deafness or a discharge from the ears then ear treatments are indicated.

Often there is a nasty cough, a tickling of the throat, or a constriction across the chest, after the acute stages of the cold are past.

If the trouble persists the chest should be examined and also the sputum. This is the way tuberculosis begins. I am saying this not to frighten you, but to urge you to see a doctor if your cold and cough persist.

A cold indicates that you are in a run-down condition. You need to overcome the underlying cause. If you can get away to a new atmosphere for a few days, a change into the country or the seashore, where you can have fresh air and sunshine this will do more good than all the medicine in the world. If you can't afford this luxury, sit out in the park, warmly clothed, and there will be all the fresh air and sunshine that you need.

Love's Reawakening -:- Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

House Agent's Key to Larches Also Missing

I SWERVED the car sharply at my mother-in-law's query.

"What are you trying to do, upset the car just because I ask you a simple question?" she demanded.

"This is the turn to the agent's," I said, attempting to divert her attention, but with little hope of success. "I would have passed it if you had not told me."

"Is that any reason for taking a chance like that?" she retorted. "I suppose we'd be in fine shape to interview a real estate agent if the car turned over on us. Suppose you had passed the corner! You could have turned around—the street is wide here—or you could have gone around the block. You're not a local fireman and the agent's house isn't on fire, you know."

I laughed dutifully, for I knew she expected it. Mother Graham has a high opinion of her own humor and expects everyone else to appreciate it—and at the same moment drew up the car to the entrance of the real estate agent's house.

"Well, a minute ago I never expected to be walking through this gate," she said as I pushed back the gate set in an old-fashioned picket fence inclosing the large yard. "Now if the man isn't home we've had our trouble for nothing."

I mentally echoed her plaint as I pushed the bell beside the sign which told us that Josiah Halset dealt in real estate. But we were in doubt only a few seconds. Then Mr. Halset himself, a small, spare man, with sandy hair plentifully mixed with gray, and a mouthful of gold filled teeth opened the door to us.

"Well! Well!" he said with an effusiveness not warranted by his slight acquaintance with us, but which we had heard was a mannerism of the little man's—a painfully acquired triumph over his natural shyness when the Long Island boom thrust him into the bustle of the modern realty game. "Well!" he repeated after a pause, during which I struggled with my risibles. "If it isn't the two Mrs. Grahams! Have some chairs." He pushed two nervously forward. "It's lucky you found me home. I was just going down to the office. It's sort of late to be starting, but there's never much doing before noon."

"Office!" my mother-in-law snorted. "I didn't know you had one."

"I never have found one necessary," Mr. Halset said with dignity, "until this year. Everyone here knew me so well—I've lived here all my life, and my father and grandfather and great-grandfather before me—that they all came to me here. But there's many new people and new real estate offices, too, so Mr. Colvin, the insurance man, joined in with me and we have an office on the main street. It's real nice, too. Drop in some time and see it."

"I'd love to see it," I told him, "and I surely will stop there the first opportunity I have."

"I might remind you, Margaret," my mother-in-law said with great dignity, "that we haven't much time."

Mr. Halset wriggled under her patent disapproval and gave his hands what Harry Underwood would call a "dry wash."

"What can I do for you?" he asked quickly.

"This is my daughter-in-law's affair entirely," she said. "Margaret, tell him what you want."

She leaned back in her chair and folded her hands in her lap, presenting a perfect picture of bored languor. Quickly I outlined to Mr. Halset my desire to rent The Larches for a friend during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Halset's face brightened, then took on a curious look of chagrin.

"Shucks," he said. "I guess you can have it all right, and I could go right out with you now and let you see it, but I've lost the key to it. I was looking over my keys the other day and that one had disappeared."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The White Man's Burden

WOMEN invented love, clothes, manners and conversation.

If it had not been for woman's vanity, Coubtless Man would still be going around in animal skins in Winter, and in fig leaves in Summer, without so much as changing a button as a concession to "style."

* * *

If it had not been for her insistence on devotion, and her penchant for petting, he probably would never have discovered that his desire to drag her around his tent was "love."

* * *

If it had not been for her fastidiousness, he would probably still be eating his meat raw, his lobster without Newburgh sauce, and his grass without Russian dressing.

If it had not been for her desire to express herself and to chatter, he would still be conversing (as many men do), entirely in grunts and monosyllables and clinching his arguments with a blow instead of with an epigram.

* * *

Woman has also been credited with having discovered sin.

This is because Eve took the first bite of the apple.

But, if Adam had taken the first bite, he would probably have said it was because Eve dared him to—and the conclusion would have been the same.

* * *

However that may be, women have fewer sins than men—chiefly because the average woman is so busy trying to cure some man's sins, that she has no time to cultivate any of her own.

Woman did NOT invent or discover rumor—but she has done everything in the world to promote it and to keep it alive.

By permitting herself to be used as the subject of most of the jokes in the world, she has saved many a masculine humorist from dying in the poorhouse or having to work for a living.

Woman may not have invented marriage—but she has kept it going, and she has added most of the modern improvements to it.

Woman invented "society" in its more decorative sense. Pink teas, twelve course dinners, week-end parties, flirtation, scandal, gossip—woman is the author of all of these.

In fact, it seems that woman has invented or discovered all the conventions and graces which are most uncomfortable to man, and which make life one long boredom to him.

Take all the women out of the world, and in two years Man would go back to Nature—and be comfortable, healthy and happy.

In less time than that, he would be rid of safety razors, linen collars, oyster forks, silk hats, grand opera, boiled shirts, and tissue-paper dinner favors.

* * *

Woman's inventions and discoveries have been "The White Man's Burden" ever since she invented the one-piece ensemble, and went in for conventionality, way back in the Garden of Eden.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 20.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not a very important one, judging by the astral activities, but nonetheless holds portent of annoyance and peril for those in the employment of others. Also there is some hint of money loss or anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of some anxiety as to money matters and should also take pains to safeguard their employment. However, they may find themselves with a fair share of initiative and resourcefulness in order to bridge over menacing situations.

A child born on this day may be active and enterprising, with initiative and courage enough to assist it over difficult situations in employment and finance.

Monday, April 21.

MONDAY'S astrological map shows brilliant prospects for many new ventures and achievements with splendid auguries for success and prosperity. Negotiations and agreements with large corporations, combines or mergers are especially encouraged and these may lead far afield from old conditions and attachments, having divided influence on the personal as well as business life.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid prospects, with success and prosperity promised especially in negotiations and contracts with large enterprises or organizations wherein secret agreements and diplomatic relations are involved. These may call for important change in environment and in the personal contracts and private life.

A child born on this day may have many endowments for success and high position in life especially in connection with large corporations, combines, secret societies or in diplomtic circles. It should be industrious and faithful, as well as brilliant and talented.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY woman should be self-conscious about the way she sits, stands or walks. She won't forget, then, to take up the slack in her spine, to carry her head royally, to keep her knees together instead of sprawling, to have the chest lifted, to see that hands are tranquil and not moving about restlessly. Incorrect posture is responsible for all manner of ills and it is a subject upon which the average woman worries not at all.

UNDERFEEDING is likely to bring on a state of mental depression. Women are fussy when they diet. The body is crying out for its usual supply of good chow, and the mind is sympathetic. Rations should be reduced gradually, so the digestive organs will accustom themselves to the change.

IMPROPER shampooing discourages the permanent wave. Hair that has been hard-boiled requires many soapings and many rinsings and the last ritual should be a thorough steaming. Never a cold water rinse.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Ready Made Initials

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I spent my vacation in Northern Michigan, and while there met quite a few of the younger folks. Among them was L—whom I became quite friendly with, and L and I corresponded for quite a long time. L happens to be a girl. For no reason whatsoever she stopped writing to me.

Today we received an announcement of her marriage to a young chap whom I also know quite well. Should I address the letter to both, like this: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" or just to L, and shall my salutation be just to her or to both of them?

JUST A READER.

ADDRESS your letter of good wishes to L and make your salutation to her also. Then, in the body of your letter, include a friendly message of congratulation to "Mr. Smith."

I like the letter paper itself—its dignity and the pleasant cream tone. But the large initial gives, I think, too much the impression of not being especially engraved on the letter paper. It is vastly better not to have any marking or engraving on letter paper, rather than to have "ready-made" initials.

Don't Announce It

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would you be kind enough to advise me whether it is a good custom to send out engagement announcements? If so, how soon should they be sent? I ask this question because I very rarely hear of it being done among middle-class people. Are the people who receive the announcements apt to take it that a present is necessary to be given to the bride-to-be? In that case, I would not wish to send them out.

READER.

IT IS not the custom of people "in society" to send out formal announcements of an engagement. While formal announcements are correct as a means of announcing a wedding, they are not considered correct for announcing an engagement.

To announce her engagement a girl tells her closest friends who live in town, writes to those out of town, and then, if she wishes, her father and mother insert in the newspapers a formal announcement of the engagement. There may be, too, a luncheon or dinner or tea, given the bride's mother, to celebrate the announcement.

RETAIL TRADE SHOWS GAIN HERE

Grocery and Provision Prices Low; Jewelry Slightly More Active

Retail trade, particularly with the larger stores, has shown a material increase so far this month, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Jobbers of wearing apparel, shoes and millinery report freer buying, although orders, as a rule, average rather small, and appear to be for current needs almost entirely.

Jewelry trade, while slightly more active, continues below normal, and the demand appears to be principally for novelties and the cheaper grades of merchandise.

Demand for hardware and farm implements shows a slight improvement, with builders' hardware still moving slowly. There's more residential construction work in progress, building permits in March being greater than in January or February and, while the number of permits for residences in March was less than a year ago, the total is about $50,000 higher. There has been somewhat better demand for lumber and building materials, with practically good prospects for an early improvement. Groceries and provisions continue to move somewhat below normal, with prices averaging rather low.

Not much change is noted in the operations of industrial plants, although steel mills are reported operating at a slightly higher rate. A steady improvement is noted in the demand for window glass, with the price situation still far from satisfactory. Demand for plate glass continues comparatively quiet, although moderate improvement is noted. Producers of electrical equipment continue to operate steadily, with orders coming in at a very fair rate. Manufacturers of sanitary and radiator equipment are operating at a rather low rate business, being considerably quieter than a year ago. While there has been a moderate increase in crude oil products, demand for refined products is increasing and prices are showing more firmness.

Production of bituminous coal is at a somewhat higher rate and demand is improving to some extent. Western Pennsylvania grade of run of mine coal are quoted per net ton as follows:—Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents; gas slack, $1.00 to $1.10.

Complaints of slow collections continue to be received from jobbers, although some improvement is looked for as result of more active business with retailers.

Showing the sales room and office of the Black-Kiedaisch Wall Paper Company which specializes in Stan-Test wall paper, made under a new process with colors and stock that do not fade.

PAPER COMPANY SALES GAIN

Rapid expansion has been shown in the sales of the Black-Kiedaisch Wall Paper Company. The organization started in business at 242 First avenue in 1924.

The first year in business it distributed among paper hangers, decorators and dealers, 300 sets of sample books. It has been a growing concern ever since, and in the present year has distributed 1,500 sets of books at a cost of $10,000. Three years ago this company installed a book making plant at a cost of $6,500, and since that time has been making its own sample books. This is the only sample book making department between Philadelphia and Cleveland. The sample book department is capable of turning out 250 books daily. This work is done around the first of each year.

In 1928 the company leased the adjoining building. This gave it a frontage on First avenue of 70 feet, and 12,000 square feet floor space.

The Black-Kiedaisch Company has only three stockholders. These are M. H. Black, J. S. Kiedaisch and P. A. Petrie. All three members devote their entire time to the company.

M. H. Black and J. S. Kiedaisch have spent their entire lives in the wall paper business, both as retailers and as wholesalers. They maintain a sales room and sales force for the accommodation of their customers' clients.

The Black-Kiedaisch Company specializes in Stan-Test wall paper, made under a new process with colors and stock that do not fade.

Business Shows Moderate Gain In April

NEW YORK, April 19.—Recent records reveal a moderate improvement in the nation's trade during the first two weeks of April, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

Steel is uncertain and plods along on a fairly even level without coming to any spring peak to scale; building seems lately to be infected with similar hesitancy, and electric output still lags at a relatively low level. Carloadings and check-money turnover have shown perceptible quickening since the beginning of April, probably reflecting the belated stimulation of Easter trade, and except for the overdue recognition by copper of the world of declining prices, commodity markets have strengthened here and abroad.

EMPLOYES BUY MORE STOCK

Bethlehem Steel Corporation announced today that complete reports, which have just been compiled, show 43,357 employes subscribed for shares of the corporation's 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock under this year's employes' saving and stock ownership plan. This is the seventh year in which employes have had an opportunity to buy shares on easy terms of payment. The price of $125 per share was the highest of any year's offering, but the number of employe subscribers was greater this year than ever before.

Each share actually costs the employe $113.56 instead of $125. While he is paying for the stock at $4 per month over a period of 29 months, he receives nine quarterly dividends during that time and special benefits of $1 for the first year and $2 for the second, which reduce the cost accordingly. Then, if he holds his stock for three more years, he receives $12 in additional special benefits of $3, $4 and $5, respectively, for each year.

How employes' interest in acquiring shares of the corporation's capital stock has increased since the first offering seven years ago is indicated by the following: Subscriptions this year totaled 73,783 shares as against 51,034 in 1924; the number of employes subscribing this year was 43,357 as against 19,922 in 1924 and the percentage of total employes subscribing was 66.5 per cent as against 32 per cent in 1924.

GENERAL TRADE LOWER

WASHINGTON, April 19.—According to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce for the week ended April 12, the volume of business, as indicated by check payments, was lower than in the pervious week and about 5 per cent lower than for the corresponding week of 1929. Operations in steel plants during the latest reported week were on a slightly lower level than in the previous week and less than a year ago. Production of bituminous coal was 7 per cent smaller than for the previous week, but 8 per cent larger than for the same period a year ago. Petroleum and lumber production were both fractionally larger than they were for the previous week, while they showed decreases of about 5 per cent and 8 per cent, respectively, from a year ago. The value of building contracts were less than a week ago and below the corresponding week of 1929.

The general index of wholesale prices was slightly higher than last week, but 6 per cent lower than it was a year ago. There was comparatively no change in the composite iron and steel price from last week, and the price for cotton middling remained the same as a week ago.

RAIL TRAFFIC OFF 8.1%

The volume of freight traffic handled by the Class I railroads of this country in February this years amounted to 34,340,775,000 net ton-miles, according to reports just received from the railroads by the Bureau of Railway Economics.

Compared with February, 1929, this was a reduction of 3,798,396,000 net ton-miles, or 10 per cent, and a reduction of 1,382,063,000 net ton-miles or 3.9 per cent under February, 1928.

The volume of freight traffic handled by the Class I railroads in the first two months of 1930 amounted to 71,062,160,000 net ton-miles, a reduction of 6,287,247,000 net ton-miles, or 8.1 per cent under the corresponding period in 1929 and a reduction of 949,472,000 net ton-miles, or 1.3 per cent under the corresponding period in 1928.

Surplus Railroad Cars Decline In March

Class I railroads on March 31 had 465,920 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association reports.

This was a decrease of 12,672 cars compared with March 23, at which time there were 478,592 cars.

ART INSTITUTE MOVED

To provide for increased enrollments the Art Institute of Pittsburgh is again moving to larger quarters.

In October, 1921, 10 students met in the studio of Willis Shook, Fulton Building, to study art. The single room served their purpose very well, being ample to contain the necessary furniture and lockers.

As the class grew, more equipment was added, until, before Christmas, lockers lined three walls and more space was urgently needed.

Three more rooms were added to the school. Before the next fall they were again outgrown. The school moved to the corner of Grant street and Fifth avenue, occupying much roomier space for nearly three years.

The enrollment by this time had passed 250, but the widening of Grant street took a slice off the building, so again a move was made to 545 Sixth avenue, there to occupy an entire floor of 4,500 feet.

ENROLLMENT GAINS

That floor during the last five years has once more proved too small for the growing classes. The present school year has enrolled 518 students, not counting summer school students. During Easter vacation the school moved its studios to the corner of Penn avenue and Stanwix street, opposite the Joseph Horne Company, to occupy the complete third floor of 7,200 square feet.

On Wednesday, April 23, the students will return from their Easter rest to find everything in readiness.

Open house will be held after all is going smoothly, and invitations will be issued so that the workings of a stictly modern art school, devoting its entire facilities of commercial art, the only one East of Chicago, may be seen.

Summer classes will commence in the middle of June and again on July 1, offering instruction in advertising art, fashion drawing and interior decoration.

POWER OUTPUT DECLINES

According to figures received each week by the statistical research department of the National Electric Light Association, electric power output is running somewhat below last year's levels throughout the Middle West, New England, up-state New York, a large part of the Rocky Mountain region and in the South. The largest losses continue to register in the areas serving the automotive and mining industries.

The outlook for the next few months indicates that the total production of electric power may continue to run somewhat below last year's figures for the United States as a whole. This can hardly be considered, however, as a reflection of subnormal industrial activity at the present time, but rather as a reflection of the extraordinary and unusually expanded conditions at this time last year. During the spring and summer of 1929, the curve of electric power production did not follow the normal seasonal line, which shows a distinct sag from April to August, but indicated a marked and unseasonal expansion. The trend of present output closely follows the usual line and, in registering decreases below last year, does not indicate a further recession of business. It indicates, rather, a return to more normal conditions in industry and trade.

Roads Ask Bond Issue Authority

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Applications of two Van Sweringen railroads, the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Pere Marquette, to issue $24,900,000 of equipment trust gold certificates to be used in the purchase of new equipment costing $33,357,699, were made to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Chesapeake and Ohio would assume obligation and liability for $19,800,000 of the certificates to purchase equipment costing $26,520,299 and the Pere marquette $5,100,000 to buy equipment costing $6,837,404.

LANG REVIEWS RECREATION WORK

City Facilities More Than Doubled During Four-Year Period Just Ended

By EDWARD G. LANG,
Director of Department of Public Works.

No activity in the Department of Public Works is of greater importance in the psysical, moral and spiritual progress and advancement of the boy and girl in a community, hence the Bureau of Recreation is making a special effort to provide ample playgrounds and recreation centers under the supervision of loyal, capable and faithful employes, whose influence on the boy and the girl is incalculable.

In 30 years' experience in civic life and in municipal government, I am convinced that every dollar spent on the boy and the girl in the formation of character and in the inculcating of high ideals in the youth of the community, brings to the people generally greater and more beneficent results than $100 spent on an adult in lines of reformation.

FOUR-YEAR PERIOD

December 31, 1929, marked the close of a four-year period, during which the increase in the provision of facilities for public recreation has been the most rapid in Pittsburgh's history. During these four years the number of playgrounds under supervision has more than doubled, while the number of athletic fields and swimming pools constructed and operated by the Bureau of Recreation has been increased to the same extent.

During 1929 the Bureau of Recreation maintained 52 playgrounds for small children, 35 athletic fields and 11 swimming pools. Funds were appropriated for five additional swimming pools, which are in various stages of construction. Recreational activities are conducted throughout the year at 10 centers with a staff of 79 permanent employes. During the summer 160 additional men and women are engaged in the supervision and care of playgrounds, athletic fields and swimming pools. The average number of visits daily to these 87 playgrounds and athletic fields during July and August was 27,783. The average daily attendance at the 11 swimming pools for the 100-day season was 9,215, and the average daily attendance at the 10 all-year recreation centers was 6,310. The records of the Bureau of Recreation show the total number of visits to all the centers operated thrpughout the year of 3,607,300.

USED BY SCHOOLS

The taxpayer with an eye for economy will be interested to note that 39 public schools make regular daily use of city playgrounds for outdoor play throughout the school year, while in addition, more than 1,400 permits were issued during the year to high schools and grade schools for the use of city athletic fields. On the other hand, 31 school buildings and 22 school grounds were used throughout the summer by the Bureau of Recreation in connection with the summmer playground activities. This interchange in the use of city and board of education property, involving a saving of many thousands of dollars, has increased about 300 per cent during the past four years.

Plan Stabilization Of Road Building

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Extension to the highway construction industry of the credit stabilization procedure now being adopted in the building industry will be one of the major subjects up for consideration at the annual spring meeting of the executive board of the Associated General Contractors of America, according to E. J. Harding, assistant general manager of that organization.

The contractors' association maintains that highway construction industry has long suffered from the overexpansion of contractors, resulting in unsound competitive conditions that have tended to bankrupt the entire industry while preventing the rendering of proper service to the public. The new move for the stabilization of credit practices is designed to set up and maintain standards of business procedure which would aid in preventing contractors from defaulting on highway projects and would eliminate the consequent delays and losses to the public.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

BUILDING STEEL ORDERS SHOW GAIN

Finished Steel Prices Average Under Low Point of Late 1927.

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel consumption is undoubtedly increasing in various lines, particularly in connection with building and other outdoor work. The average peak time of automobile production has fallen late in April, and buying of steel must precede production of complete cars by several weeks. The increase in automobile production has been slow and disappointing, but that means that the steel trade has much less to lose now than it has had at this date in other years, while there are decided chances of automobile production continuing to increase.

Fabricated structural steel lettings have been averaging moderately light in the last few weeks, but has been running more to small jobs, which gives the small fabricating shops much needed business, while the large shops have had a very good order book right along. Thus steel requirements of fabricating shops are assuredly large for some time to come. As to the freight car shops, their order book has been fair and production against it has not been at a high rate by any means, whereby it appears there is nothing to lose in that direction for say three months, and meanwhile more buying may develop.

SUMMER LULL

Usually the steel trade has some summer dullness, and there is no precise reason for expecting the usual experience to be avoided this year, particularly when some lines of consumption have definite prospects of involving less steel. Annual rail orders will be practically completed by July 1, the farm implement industry regularly has a summer lull, and at present freight car shops cannot see very far ahead, as just indicated.

Steel ingot production has kept within the limits of 75 and 80 per cent of capacity during the last 30 days. It was probably nearer 75 per cent a month ago, and is probably nearer 80 per cent now. The best guess seems to be that the average of the next 60 days will approximate the average of the last 30 days and that production will taper off for the usual light July. Certainly an upturn for autumn should be expected, doubt being rather as to the time and extent.

PRICE SITUATION

As finished steel prices now average a trifle below their low point of late 1927, the price situation is of great interest. It is not important that prices average the lowest since about August, 1922, for in eight years there has been a very substantial decrease in costs. An unfavorable feature is the proportions of the price structure. The general average is not bad, but some finished lines are much nearer cost than others, which makes it bad for the producers of those lines and raises question whether the others may not eventually suffer. In particular, there is growing talk of such shading in bars, shapes and plates as to raise doubts whether the present openly quoted market level of 1.80c to 1.85c, Pittsburgh, will hold indefinitely. Strip mills are endeavoring to firm up their market, but the sheet market does not seem to be gaining anything in the matter of price strength.

Quite a fair volume of line pipe has been booked by pipe and tube mills in the last few weeks, all in small orders, giving a higher operating rate but no backlog. Pipe and tube mills have averaged an operation of about 60 per cent in the past week, against 40 per cent and less for many weeks earlier in the year. There has been a further improvement in demand for standard pipe, which presumably will be sustained. Chances are strong that some large pipe lines will be let, for natural gas, oil and gasoline.

President

MICHAEL MANELLI

RAPID GROWTH FOR FIRM

From a small city in Italy, a poor immigrant boy came to Pittsburgh. He obtained a job as a water boy, working for 40 cents a day. By hard work and study, the immigrant boy has become a financial power in the city. This is the story of Mike Manelli, president of the Manelli Construction Company and the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company.

Mr. Manelli came to Pittsburgh in 1897. He succeeded in getting a job with the Gillespie Construction Company as water boy. In five years, by attending night school and applying himself to his duties, he became foreman in charge of the construction of the Aspinwall filtering plant. His success on this work gained for him the confidence of his employers, and he was later put in charge of other important construction work.

In 1914 Mr. Manelli with M. D. Swartz as a partner founded the Manelli Construction Company and the first job this new concern obtained was that of reflooring the Point Bridge for the city. Shortly after this a contract for the reflooring of the New Kensington Bridge was obtained. For the next two years the company was employed on installing underground conduit for the Bell Telephone Company.

In 1917 Mr. Manelli bought out the interests of Mr. Swartz and obtained complete control of the company. Mr. Manelli's success on various types of construction jobs from this time on has made him one of Pittsburgh's largest contractors.

In 1927 Mr. Manelli decided to own as far as possible his source of supply and started the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company, of Rochester, Pa., at a cost of $250,000. This company today is a very large concern.

Touches 'Hot' Wire, Dies After Fall

Thrown from a 20-foot ladder when he came in contact with a 440-volt wire in the Oliver Iron and Steel Works, South Side, William Dorn, 55, of 3 Rudolph street, died yesterday in South Side Hospital. Dorn was employed as an electrician. He suffered severe burns and skull fracture.

Building Activity Gains 50% in Week

NEW YORK, April 19.—Due chiefly to a sharp rise in value of proposed educational and commercial structures, projected big building operations announced throughout the nation during the past week advanced nearly 50 per cent over the total for the preceding week, the Construction Daily reports. Comparative figures were as follows: $112,019,000 for the last seven-day period, comparing with $57,518,000 in the previous week and $167,900,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Educational buildings took $55,182,000 of the total for the week; commercial buildings, $17,890,000; public work, $20,150,000; apartment houses and hotels, $5,350,000; theaters, $5,125,000; hospitals, $1,010,000; industrial buildings, $850,000, and unclassified work, $6,462,000.

Industrial Conditions Unchanged Here

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WHILE business activity in the Pittsburgh district has shown no appreciable change in pace during the past month, the belief is general that a gradual improvement will be apparent during the summer.

Leaders in many of this city's dominant industries are still looking toward Detroit for signs of better conditions. The automobile makers are among this district's biggest customers. There has been some improvement in the demand for steel for shipment to Detroit during the past two weeks but this has been confined to the lower priced producers of cars. The automobile trade in general has a long way to go before it can be called busy.

Production at about 75 per cent of capacity is not a particularly low rate for steel mills with such an important customer as Detroit in a period of depression. When the automobile industry does resume more satisfactory production schedules the steel mills here will be working at a good rate.

Prices Decline

THE depressing feature of the steel industry, so far as the outlook for earnings is concerned, is the price situation. Since last fall quotations on most steel products have been subject to shading. Two months ago it was hoped that the bottom had been reached but further price weakness has again been uncovered. A short time ago the minimum price for plates and shapes was 1.80 cents a pound. Recent concessions have brought the price down to 1.75 cents, the lowest since 1927.

The makers of plate glass are also watching the situation in Detroit. The automobile makers are even more important to this industry than to steel. Since the closed car jumped into popularity about half of the plate glass output has been used in automobiles.

Earnings to Decline

JUST how much business in this district was affected by the slump in the first three months of the year can be best judged by the quarterly reports of corporations, most of which will be published next week.

Officials of leading industrial companies have been rather unwilling to make any comment on these statements in advance of their completion. This can be taken as an indication of the fact that declines will be shown in almost all cases. There will be a few outstanding exceptions, however. Among these will be the statement of Westinghouse Air Brake.

Second Quarter Prospects

WHILE most companies are expected to make better showings for the second quarter, business this month has not indicated any pronounced rate of improvement. So far as the steel companies are concerned, lower prices are likely to counteract any improvement in output unless sales gain to a very marked extent.

One favorable development has been improvement in building activity in many parts of the country. So far this year, however, building has been disappointing. The revival which was freely predicted as a result of cheap money failed to materialize. Apparently high interest rates were not the only factor in putting an end to the building boom.

WOULD RELIEVE COURT JAM

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP.)—Representative McKeown, (Dem.), Oklahoma, has proposed to President Hoover a plan for relieving court congestion through appointment of a number of "floating magistrates" with a life tenure of office.

The Oklahoma Representative said LaGuaria (Rep.), New York, would lay the plan before the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission within the next few days.

Under his plan, McKeown explained, the federal magistrates to be appointed would constitute an inferior tribunal, handling only criminal cases and would be assigned definite cases by the Federal Court judge in each congested district.

Bonds Dominate In New Financing

NEW YORK, April 19.—During week ended April 17 aggregated $78,594,000 entirely bond offerings against $244,885,000 preceding week, of which $182,760,000 was in bonds and $62,125,000 in stocks, and $78,796,000 a year ago, of which $39,872,500 was in stocks and $38,923,500 in bonds.

From beginning of year to date, bond offerings totaled $1,860,708,000 against $1,177,171,450 in 1929 period. Stock financing from January 1 to date remains at $234,673,791, against $1,230,150,013 in 1929 period.

TRAFFIC COUNT BY SCOUTS

Letters of instruction were sent today to the 1,200 Boy Scouts who will take part in the traffic volume count to be made of the principal arteries of the city and the streets of the Golden Triangle by Traffic Engineer Burton W. Marsh, of the Bureau of Traffic Planning, on May 22.

This year's traffic count is the largest of its kind ever to be attempted by any city, according to Marsh. It is to be made possible through the work of the Bureau of Traffic Planning and with the co-operation of the street facilities section of the Better Traffic Committee, of which John M. Rice is chairman.

Sells Holdings in Insurance Group

NEW YORK, April 19.—Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation announces sale of its holdings in National Liberty group of fire insurance companies to Home Insurance Company. Home Insurance already has a management contract for these companies, and by acquiring this stock interest will place its management and financial control in the same hands. Stocks involved in deal will be lodged, it is understood, with Home Fire Security Corporation Holding Company.

Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation will continue its interest through acquisition of a block of stock in Home Fire Security Corporation and will be represented on its board by Henry S. Bowers.

GLASS TRADE BETTER

The American Glass Review, in its issue of April 19, will say:

Marketing conditions in the flat glass industry continued to show improvement the past week, due principally to increased activity in the building industry. Demand for window glass is getting gradually better with each succeeding week, and the plate glass market likewise, during the past ten days, has shown more activity.

Orders for window glass, in most instances, while not for large amounts, are in considerably greater volume than at this time a month ago, reflecting the low stocks in jobbers' warehouses. In view of the increased building, either already under way or in prospect, all indications are that the trade requirements will be appreciably heavier in the near future. Movement of stocks from manufacturers' warehouses, as a consequence, should show a healthy increase in the weeks to come. Production of window glass continues at virtually the same low level as for some weeks past.

HOME BUILDING URGED BY BARNES

National Survey Head Says Boom Would Aid Trade Stabilization.

Repairs and betterments have been accelerated 30 per cent this year, and the next logical step in the stabilization of business is the resumption of home building, for which in most sections ample credit exists, according to a statement by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the National Business Survey Conference, which was organized under government auspices. Reports from many sources indicate that the emphasis laid upon repairs and betterments as a contributing factor in the stabilization of business has been effective, according to the statement. Permits issued for this purpose show a substantial growth. Since the early part of the year the average daily permits for additions, alterations and repairs have increased 30 per cent. The stimulus given these activities has aided appreciably in relieving unemployment.

LOGICAL STEP

The next logical step is the resumption of home building. For this the executive committee of the National Building Survey Conference reports that conditions are now generally favorable. In most sections an ample supply of credit for this purpose is available at reasonable cost; and prices and terms for materials and equipment for such construction have become fairly well stabilized on a basis satisfactory to the purchaser.

With favorable seasonal conditions also at hand it would appear that attention might now be directed with advantage to requirements for residential building. Industrial construction and replacement have been well sustained. Repairs and betterments have been accelerated. The resumption of prudent building activity in the residential field will aid materially in bringing employment back to normal.

Donley Heads C. of C. Shippers' Council

Charles Donley, traffic manager, was named chairman of the shippers council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, at its annual election yesterday. J. H. Huggans and L. G. Hults were named first and second vice-chairmen, respectively. A review of the past year's work was given by the retiring chairman, J. R. Schrecongost.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market True to Form — New York Summary

STOCKS REPEAT POST PANIC ACTIONS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 19.—It has become increasingly apparent that buyers had to bid to woo stocks from the new group of well entrenched owners. Such a sequel to the panic parallels those of previous eras in American speculative cycles.

The nature of corrective periods since February have also been characteristic of well liquidated post panic markets. Reactions have been little more than gentle shading off of prices, as previous advances have become consolidated.

The continuous sharp advances in brokers' loans since March 1 are indicative of a changing phase of the market. From a strictly banking standpoint, brokers' loans are still far from a dangerous level, but they show some disposition on the part of outright owners to begin to take profits by passing on part of their holdings to marginal speculators. Usually banking purists, who are out of synchronization with speculative Wall street, begin to worry about such a trend too early. Nevertheless, the further advance in brokers' loans this week of $131,000,000 to $4,125,000,000, compared with $3,994,000,000 a week ago and $5,425,000,000 a year ago, should plainly demonstrate to the Federal Reserve authorities that their efforts to whoop things up with the lure of cheap money is producing results.

It should also be apparent to the Federal Reserve authorities that they have gone as far as they prudently can in the artificial credit easing policy, and that the 3½ per cent rediscount rate should mark bottom. To go further at this time with venturesomeness already restored in the security market would be to invite renewed inflation.

Evidently employers are respecting President Hoover's desire to keep up wage rates. Though there was a decrease of six-tenths of 1 per cent in employment in manufacturing industries in March, compared with February, there was an increase of one-tenth of 1 per cent in their payroll, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. Evidently there has been progress in economic knowledge since 1921. In that earlier recession, employers were obsessed with the necessity of deflating labor. This year the emphasis is on means of keeping up consumer purchasing power.

Though sentiment in this country has been opposed to doles, the problem remains to protect workers in their old age. Until more social progress has been made in this direction, the prudent wage earner will on his own initiative set up reserves in the way of savings and investments against old age and physical incapacity. There is a fine opportunity for enlightened corporations to guide their employes along sound thrift lines.

In this connection, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company recently put into operation an annuity plan designed to provide its 50,000 employes on their retirement at the age of 65 years and over, with substantial income for the remainder of their lives. This new scientific plan replaces an older program which was somewhat faulty. The company places no limit on pensions which individual employes may seek. It provides annuities for all employes in varying amounts by regularly setting aside under a trusteeship sums actuarily determined to be adequate to pay annuities to all retired employes. Then employes are also encouraged to buy additional annuity for themselves in an insurance company at group rates.

W. A. Dick, of the Westinghouse Company, in reporting on the new plan, pointed out:

"The results of the first canvass in the main manufacturing plant at East Pittsburgh exceeded the expectations of the insurance representatives. Similar results were experienced at branch plants."

It is a sign of a growing civilized spirit in business when corporations stir themselves to foster the personal aims of their employes. The average citizen wants to rid himself of the specters of poverty and unemployment. Organized business should co-operate to set conscientious workers free from such fears. Companies which are neglectful of the welfare of the human element in business are not well managed, irrespective of what their financial statements may show.

General Foods Net to Show Increase

NEW YORK, April 19.—Net earnings of General Foods Corporation for current year are expected to approximate $23,000,000 and thus establish a new high record for company in earning power. Net or around this figure would be equal to approximately $4.50 a share on 5,198,724 common shares now outstanding. Net earnings in 1929 amounted to $19,422,000 or $3.68 a share.

First earnings statement will show net of over $5,900,000, an increase of some $800,000 over corresponding 1929 quarter. Without allowing for an increase in sales volume over 1929, net profits this year should show a gain of $3,000,000 after an appropriation of an additional $1,500,000 for advertising, because of decreased cost of raw materials, such as corn and wheat, discontinuance of profit sharing plan and economies which company is now in a position to show from many acquisitions in recent years.

High Telephone Official Here Tells Policy.

—By B. C. FORBES—

A one-sentence remark in this column has brougnt an extremely interesting statement from a very high authority in the Bell Telephone System. He tells exactly what to expect and what not to expect from American Telephone directors in their treatment of stockholders. And he quashes, once and for all, a Wall Street rumor which lately has been most persistent. He says:

"You state in your column, 'Distribution of Western Electric as a melon to A. T. & T. stockholders would be logical one of these days.'

"This is one of the very few silly statements that I have ever known you to make.

"Western Electric is as much an integral part of the Bell System as the heart is to the human body. Western Electric, owned 98 per cent by A. T. & T., is nothing more or less than the manufacturing and purchasing arm of the Telephone system, organized and maintained for sound, practical and economic reasons. Distribute that property to anyone else and you would deprive the Bell companies of their necessary, concentrated manufacturing and purchasing organization and bring into being an uncoordinated, complicated, probably chaotic, system that could have no compensating advantages.

"In order to boom the stock, it would be just as reasonable for Wall Street to say that we intend to convert all our copper toll lines into ingots, sell them and distribute the cash to the stockhold

"Our policy is as fixed and as near permanent as the Constitution of the United States. It is, briefly: No increase beyond the 9 per cent dividend rate; no split-ups of stocks; no melons except the offer to stockholders, as need for additional capital arises, to subscribe for new stock at favorable prices.

"Perhaps you will want to print this unqualified, authoritative statement to keep your own record straight and to spike Wall Street rumors which might mislead some of our half-million stockholders."

A. P. GIANNINI, California banking colossus, who has invaded New York banking on his customary grand scale, has been put through the famous Mayo Brothers' mill, with results very gratifying to himself and associates who had become disturbed over the state of his health. Mr. Giannini has been on a visit to New York, apparently as irrepressibly vigorous and go-getting as ever.

THE late J. P. Morgan used to withdraw and play solitaire when confronted with a particularly knotty problem. W. C. Durant, easily the most active factor in the stock market during recent years, never travels anywhere without a checker board. He has become such an expert, I am told, that he rarely can find anyone able to put up a stiff enough fight.

Pat Cusick, New York Stock exchange member, who handles many of Durant's orders, is also a checker player, but rarely can achieve even a draw against W. C.

Colby M. Chester, Jr., president of General Foods Corporation, believes, in common with George Eastman, President Bieckler, of Frigidaire, and other heads of conspicuously progressive and successful organizations, that the way to get more business when the going becomes harder is, not to sit back idly and sadly, but to put forth redoubled energy and effort.

By increasing advertising and selling activities, this leader in the largest and oldest of all industries (food), sent March sales away ahead of February's.

"Advertising of food products," says Mr. Chester, "is doing more than merely helping sales. It is doing an educational job. It is helping to create a better understanding of food and health. It helps to raise standards of living. It presents ideas which offer greater variety and value in eating.

"Mass selling of foods is resulting in several direct benefits to the public. Quality has been improved all along the line. Formulas, materials and methods are watched with extreme care. Central research is developing improvements. Greater values are given to the public because of the economies of quantity buying, production and selling.

"One of the developments is in the field of frosted foods—perishables frozen suddenly to 50 degrees below zero, thereby maintaining freshness and flavor almost indefinitely. Initial selling of such frosted foods to the public on a test campaign has exceeded expectations."

IT'S two days' rest may do the stock market good. It acted as if it had become tired. The expectation, however, is that by and by it will get its second wind.

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

With the woman of more ample proportions in mind, the designer of this frock added tucks at the shoulders and back neck for just that extra bit of freedom so necessary. The graceful rever and the pointed hip section are slenderizing details. The sleeves may be cut long or short.

DINERS ROUTED IN FIRE SCARE

Hot charcoal, dropped on the rear steps of Stouffer's Restaurant, at 618 Smithfield street, and blown into the front of the restaurant by ventilating fans, routed more than a score of patrons and employes last night.

James Conley, a bus boy, was carrying a large pan of the hot coals, used in cooking, down the stairs to the rear alley to extinguish them. Heat from the coals became too strong for Conley, firemen said, and he dropped the pan. Ventilating fans blew the coal through small windows in the rear partition, into the restaurant. The customers and waitresses hurried for the exits.

Damage estimated at $25 resulted from fire which was caused by the coals. The blaze was confined to the steps.

GUILTY IN HUGE DOPE DEAL

NEW YORK, April 19.—(INS.)—A Federal jury here found Jacob Bloom, alias John Bell, guilty of bringing two trunks containing $300,000 worth of narcotics into this country on the Ile de France on March 4. The jury deliberated only 15 minutes.

Because of the hostility shown by Bloom throughout the trial to the counsel assigned by the government to defend him, the attorney asked that he be sent to Bellevue Hospital for observation. Judge Cooper granted this request and deferred sentence until Monday.

At the conclusion of the trial, a detective appeared in court with a warrant issued in Boston charging him with violation of the Massachusetts narcotic laws.

Three stitches were required at the Allegheny General Hospital to close a laceration in the head of Mrs. Catherine Taggart, 47, of 109 Scoville way, which, police said, was sustained when her husband struck her on the head with a board in their home last night.

Screams of the woman attracted neighbors, who sent a murder call to North Side police and detectives. The husband fled. Police said the trouble started when Mrs. Taggart accused her spouse of being attentive to another woman.

ACCUSED JUDGE GETS STAY

SELMA, N. C., April 19.—(AP.)—Preliminary hearing for Judge N. A. Sinclair, of the North Carolina Superior Court, charged with violating the federal prohibition laws, has been postponed, United States Commissioner I. W. Massey announced last night.

A warrant for the jurist's arrest was sworn out by Federal Prohibition Agent C. S. Coats, who searched an automobile several weeks ago, of which Judge Sinclair was an occupant and found a pint of whisky in the jurist's hand bag.

The affair was described as a "frame-up" by the judge, who reported the search himself. Arch Dunning, Williamston attorney, has announced that he received a signed statement from William H. Everett, farmer living near Williamston, that he placed the pint in the bag without the judge's knowledge.

RAIDERS SEIZE RUM IN CLUB

Confiscation of 16 pints of gin and five pints of whisky was reported by prohibition agents in a raid yesterday on a club on the second floor of 118 Oakland avenue. Nobody was found in the place at the time and the agents today were making efforts to locate the owner.

A 50-gallon still and 11 barrels of mash found in a dwelling at 5 Graphic street, resulted in the arrest of Frank P. Burke, 30, according to the raiders.

Liquor law violations were reported by the Federal officers in eight other raids, three of them in Arnold and one in Tarentum. The Tarentum raid was on a club at 248 West Tenth avenue, where, agents said, they arrested Joseph Riddle, 58, after seizing a pint of whisky and gin and two half-barrels of beer.

The outstanding objective for the Motorlogue is to visit the draining down from Laurel Ridge at Rector, four miles off the Lincoln Highway at Laughlintown, about 50 miles from Pittsburgh. This trout stream is said by fishermen to be the ideal trout stream in Pennsylvania. It has that desired combination of fast water, many rapids, some falls, and numerous small pools. It drains a wild, rugged country, in back of the Rolling Rock country, colony of Pittsburgh's wealthiest. On Lynn Run is a fish nursery, with more than 50,000 trout, maintained by sportsmen of Ligonier and Westmoreland county.

Twenty miles of this route, from Laughlintown to Sipesville, is over dirt road, in fair condition, but which has more natural beauty than any other 20-mile piece of highway in the Laurel Ridge; through the now budding trees, the tourist can look down into many smiling valleys. The road over the mountain follows the road-bed of railroad abandoned some years ago.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: The Presbytery of New York has voted to admit women to Presbyterian pulpits. Do you believe women are fitted for such a profession?

MARGARET F. GALLISATH, East End, saleslady — Women are just as fitted to preside in a church as men. They are entering almost every profession today so why not the ministry. There is nothing about such a profession that a woman cannot master as well as a man. Give them an opportunity.

Miss Gallisath

BETTY McVAY, Washington, Pa., clerk — In our country we pretend that women have equal rights. If this is true, what is wrong with admitting women to Presbyterian pulpits or any other kind for that matter. Women could perform the duties as well, if not better than many male pastors.

Betty McVay

ROBERT W. ESTERBERG, Mt. Washington — After everything is said, women are still looked upon as the weaker members of society. The males are hesitant in placing confidence in their ability in spite of the fact that it may be as great if not greater than that of the men. That's why I believe women will not be successful as spiritual guiders.

R. W. Esterberg

MARJORIE SHERRARD, South Hills—To be a successful minister one must have dignity. I believe dignity to be the one quality lacking in women. By that I do not mean to imply that women are silly persons who giggle. But nevertheless, they do not have that manner necessary for such a profession.

Miss Sherrard

J. MARTIN, North Side, window trimmer — Certainly women are fitted for the ministry. If I interpret my Bible right, nobody is refused the right to preach the doctrine. Rather, he or she is welcomed to do so. It is my opinion that women are better fitted than men to occupy pulpits.

J. Martin

BERTHA RUBY, downtown, clerk — A woman's place is in the home. Of course, I know women who have made progress in the arts and letters but when it comes to placing them in the pulpits, I don't believe they will inspire the confidence accorded a man. I wish them luck, though.

SPORT COMMENT

Pirate Subs Shining.

Mrs. Hurd's Ambition.

BUCS SHOW RARE RESERVE STRENGTH

ONE natural law of baseball that Pittsburgh fans evidently will have no occasion to worry about this year is that a club can be no stronger than its substitutes, and that its chances for success must depend upon the caliber of its reserves. The secondary strength of the Pirates looked like one of their best points before the opening of the season, and the manner in which the extras have come through since the pennant fighting began last Tuesday has more than borne out the early dope. Brilliant work on the part of second-string players was a tremendous factor in the splendid start made by the Bucs in capturing three out of four games at Cincinnati in the first series of the campaign, more victories than have been scored by any other club in either of the major circuits.

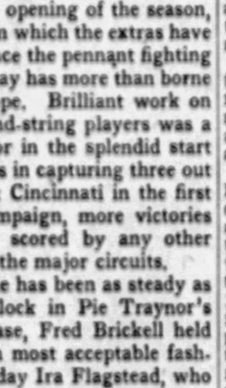
Ira Flagstead

Charley Engle has been as steady as the proverbial clock in Pie Traynor's place at third base, Fred Brickell held down Lloyd Waner's center-field job in most acceptable fashion in the first two contests, and yesterday Ira Flagstead, who supplanted Brickell on Thursday when the Reds began to use left-hand pitchers, made himself the oustanding performer in the final Cincinnati conquest by equaling the best slugging achievement of the new season in the big leagues.

NOT only did the former American Leaguer pound the Red hurlers for four hits, but three of them were for extra bases, his cluster of safeties including two doubles and a triple. That means a total of eight bases, and ties the spring record that Jim Bottomley, of the Cardinals, set on Wednesday with a homer and two doubles. What is more important, Flagstead knocked in two runs during the afternoon, and two runs, it will be noted, represented the margin of victory in the Pirates 5-to-3 success. It was a fitting exhibition to go along with the fine work that other reserves have been doing.

The showing of the subs would be very gratifying if for no other reason than the fact that it has sent a crippled team off to just as good a start as the regulars could have enabled it to make, but it means a great deal more than that as assuring that the club is well fortified against any breaks that may occur in the lineup during the season as a whole.

AND Flagstead, Engle and Brickell are not the only Bucs who have shone in emergency roles. Jessy Petty's loss of effectiveness in the eighth inning yesterday might have been fatal to the Corsairs if Steve Swetonic had not been hanging around.



Jess Petty

The North Side boy is not to be classed as a mere reserve or a second-string flinger, but he has been used only as an emergency man instead of a starter so far and has made a great job of it.

SWETONIC is the first pitcher in the majors to take his club through to two victories. He is credited with only one win in the records, but he actually saved two games for the Picaroons within a span of only four days, having gone to the rescue of Remy Kremer in the opener prior to pulling Petty out of a hole yesterday. In the two games Steve allowed only one run and six hits in a total of seven innings pitched, and it's one of the toughest tasks in baseball to jump in and stop a club that has started on a batting rampage. As a finishing pitcher there is none better than this home product.

THOUGH two left-handers tripped yesterday when Petty and Jakie May failed to go the distance for the Pirates and Reds, Bill Hallahan, of the Cardinals, who did not win a game last year until September, finishing with four won and four lost, contributed a notable number to the growing string of outstanding performances with which southpaw slabmen have been featuring the early part of the 1930 season.

It was a queer mixture of wildness and effectiveness that Hallahan displayed in defeating the Cubs, 11 to 1, but he more than offset his nine bases on balls by holding the Bruins to two hits, equaling Larry French's record of Thursday, and setting a high strike-out mark for the spring by fanning 11 of Joe McCarthy's batters. In the first week of the season lefthanders have pitched two two-hit and two three-hit games.

WESLEY FERRELL, of the Indians, last year's outstanding young pitcher with a record of 21 victories against 10 defeats, and who was one of this spring's prominent holdouts, showed promise of another big season in the flying start he made yesterday.

Tommy Ryan

Ferrell held the Tigers to one run and seven scattered hits and pitched Cleveland to an easy victory. Since July 10, last year, this crack young right-hander has won 17 out of 20 games.

TOMMY RYAN, welterweight champion from the time he dethroned Mysterious Billy Smith in 1894 until he was knocked out by Kid McCoy in 1896, and who also claimed the middleweight title later, confirms the report that he will hook up with J. W. Glenister, New York publisher, in an attempt to find an Irish heavyweight hope. Glenister will go to Ireland next month to scour the country for a prospect big enough to cope with Primo Carnera, if necessary, and good enough, after Ryan has schooled him, to win back the waning fame of Ireland, as the home of ring champions. Ryan says they want a big, husky, loose-muscled lad of about 19, a clean-living boy who has not been spoiled by city life or sophistication. Tommy plans to tutor and train him at Jim Jeffries' ranch in Burbank, Cal.

RYAN, whose proper name is Joseph Youngs, is one of the few old fighters who have prospered after quitting the ring. He had about $30,000 when he went to Los Angeles 10 years ago, got a break when the movie people, camped near a piece of land he had bought, made $3,000 a month on a gasoline station and a huge parking lot, cleaned up on some apartment house investments and other fortunate ventures and now is said to be worth half a million.

The former champion says he will now be able to give plenty of time to developing a heavyweight title chaser if Glenister succeeds in finding the right type. "The less he knows about professional fighting the better I'll like him," says Tommy. "I can show him all the science he will need. If I can get one who has never been spoiled by learning wrong, I won't have to waste a lot of time unlearning him."

WITH the 1930 baseball season only a few days old, postponments are already piling up at a rate that promises plenty of doubleheaders for the fans later in the season. The usual spring weather jinx is playing havoc with the major league schedules.

Of a total of 33 games carded in the two loops up to today, only

LEAGUE ORGANIZED

OAK HILL, W. Va., April 19.—(AP.)—The Kanawha Valley League, an organization of Southern West Virginia high schools, was formed here last night. The schools designated for the big eight were Beckley, Mount Hope, Montgomery, East Bank, Hinton, Princeton, Bluefield and Oak Hill.

RELAYS GO ON AIR

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—For the first time in their history the Penn Relays are to be broadcast this year over a national radio network. OHIO STATE FAVORED TO TOP PITT

By JESS CARVER

The pounding spikes of George Simpson and Pete Bowen, Dick Rockaway and Everett Utterback will play a thunderous accompaniment as Pitt and Ohio State inaugurate the 1930 college track and field campaign in this district today, clashing in a dual meet in the Stadium.

Champions all, this brave quartet will not seek to nail a flock of first places to their respective masts, but will take careful aim at some of the existing district and intercollegiate records.

The meeting between Bowen, Pitt's captain, national and intercollegiate quarter-mile champion, and George Simpson, who has taken over the job of being the world's fastest human, holder of the intercollegiate record for the 100-yard dash and Western Conference 100 and 220-yard titles, promises to provide the feature of the meet, in which Ohio State rules an overwhelming favorite to win. Bowen and Simpson are to clash in the 100-yard event, minus the questionable aid of the new fangled starting blocks.

MAY BREAK RECORD

So tough does the competition Bowen will afford Simpson promise to be that under favorable weather and track conditions the Ohio State flier may be forced to break a record to win his specialty this afternoon. All of which will cause the ambitious burghers who turn out for the local carnival to open wide their mouths and emit loud and raucous cheers.

Rockaway, the second champion on the Ohio State squad, holder of the world low hurdle mark and Big Ten champion in both the lows and highs, figures to be extended to the limit in the 120-yard tall timbers by Ed Knoblock, Pitt's timber-topping ace. Rockaway figures to beat Knobby in the lows, unless Knobby hurdles as he has never hurdled before. But in the highs the Pitt star has a fine chance of topping out the Buckeye luminary.

BOWEN IN 440

Bowen will also compete in his favorite race, the 440-yard event, in which he looks to be a cinch. Fred Strother, Ohio's quarter mile king, has withdrawn from this race in order to compete in both the 100- and 220-yard races. He'll have Bowen and Harris, Pitt's stars, to take care of while Pete and Wid are chasing or leading Simpson, whichever the case may be.

$50,000 PAID FOR GRIMES

BOSTON, April 19.—President Emil Fuchs, of the Boston Braves, is reported to have paid Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, $50,000 in cash along with Pitcher Percy Lee Jones in trade for Burleigh Grimes, veteran hurler. It was said that Dreyfuss turned down offers of $100,000 for Grimes from William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs, and $75,000 from President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Braves have given the former Pirate spit-baller a two-year contract calling for $20,000 a year, it was learned.

Dreyfuss, it was said, was willing to let out Grimes to almost any of the National League clubs excepting the Cubs or Cards, and when an agreement could not be reached with the pitcher he was ready to accept Fuchs' offer.

Local club officials say they intend to keep Grimes in spite of the fact the Cubs and Cards are making interesting advances for his services.

Nick Altrock Says:

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—We are having our first series with Connie Mack's team, and after you have tackled the A's, the rest are just alphabet soup. Connie's employes did not look so hot in spring training, but maybe they were waiting till their base hits were legal tender. The Athletics look about the same as last year. Grove's fast one still goes by your schnozzle so swift it looks like a piece of puffed rice shot out of a cannon, and Jimmy Foxx is still spelling his name the way you vote twice on the Literary Digest straw ballot.

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—Here for their first diamond warfare of the year, the Pirates today were ready to swing against the Cardinals by the pitching of Remy Kremer.

The peppery Freebooters came over to St. Louis from Cincinnati, where yesterday they made it three out of four over the Reds. Naturally the success of the Buccos in the first series of the year put them in a good humor and it will be an aggressive crew that tangles with the Redbirds this afternoon. The Cardinals are managed by Charles (Gabby) Street, former star catcher of the Washington Senators.

STEVE RESCUES JESS

Jess Petty and Steve Swetonic edified the Pirates yesterday with their skillful pitching as the Buccos won, 5 to 3, in the finale. Petty was in a whirlwind pace for six rounds, but when he showed signs of weakening in the eighth, Skipper Ens rushed North Side Steve to the scene. And for the second time in the series, the native son saved the day. Petty, however, received credit for the game.

Jakie May had so much stuff on the ball against the Pirates in the first three rounds that it seemed "too bad" for the Pittsburghers. Meantime, Ethan Allen, for the second time in two days, had driven a homer over the left field fence. The run stood out like a battleship in a river in view of Jake's pitching, but as the game wore on, the Pittsburghers began to solve the southpaw, who eventually was sacrificed for a pinch-hitter.

The crux of the fight came in the eighth. Petty had been scored on twice in the seventh and the Pirate lead was just one run. George Kelly started the eighth with a single, but he tried to stretch the hit and was nicked. Cuccinello and Ford singled in succession and Ens stopped the contest to put in Swetonic.

FLAGSTEAD SHOWS WELL

Joe Stripp already had been announced to bat for Pitcher Campbell, but when Ens benched Petty, Stripp was yanked in favor of Marty Callaghan. Swetonic fanned Marty, Riconda batted for Critz and grounded out to Suhr. Steve took three of the batters in succession in the ninth.

The outstanding feature of the game was the batting of Ira Flagstead. Flaggy came out of the scrap with a triple, two doubles and a single. The peppery veteran stands well to force Fred Brickell out of the lineup.

The best play of the game, and one of the greatest of the series, was flashed by Rolly Hemsley in the fifth, when, with runners on second and first and none out, he sprinted toward third for Mays' bunt, picked up the ball on the run and threw to Charley Engle for a force play. The snappy trick

OUTDOOR LIFE SHOW OPENS

Pittsburgh's inaugural Sportsmen and Outdoor Life Exposition got under way this afternoon in Motor Square Garden under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America and will continue for a week.

A fine display of outdoor equipment has been arranged, with Indians from the County Parks, garbed in tribal dress; wild animals, a motor boat display, casting pool, archery court and some three score booths devoted to the needs of outdoor enthusiasts.

A casting pool, 40x80 feet, has been built in the center of the main floor, and this will be used in holding casting contests and for instruction purposes throughout the period of the show. An archery court is also located on the main floor, together with an 18-hole indoor golf course. On the sub floor are located the pistol and rifle ranges.

On Tuesday evening a team selected from the crack pistol shots of the local police department will engage in a match with Bob Limbert, world's champion exhibition rifle shot.

The appearance of Art Young, famous archer, hunter and lecturer, who has hunted big game all over the world with his bow and arrow, is attracting much interest among the archery enthusiasts. He is given credit for having revived the use of the bow and arrow as a hunting weapon.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the show will be the display of live animals of the educational department of the Game Commission. Two yearling bears, three raccoons, two gray foxes, two yearling beavers, one wild cat and two red foxes are on display. There will be a display of tropical fish by the Allegheny Aquarists' Association.

The proceeds of the show will be used for conservation and propagation of birds, fish and game, and help make the state a sportsmen paradise.

CUBS BEATEN; INDIANS WIN

Associated Press.

Most of the baseball news so far this season has been that the fans are due to get a good supply of bargain bills in another month or so. Doubleheaders have been piling up at a rate of almost one for every two games on the major league schedule during the first week of the campaign.

From Monday, the opening day, through Friday, 33 games were carded and only 18 were played, most of them in the West. The American League was the worst sufferer with nine of the 15 postponements.

The four western teams of the National League, the only ones to get through all their games so far, provided most of the action yesterday and Cleveland and Detroit alone did the honors for the American League.

At St. Louis, Bill Hallahan, of the Cardinals, turned in one more of the brilliant pitching feats that have marked the start of the season to beat the champion Chicago Cubs, 11 to 1. Hallahan still was "Wild Bill," giving nine walks, but when he got the ball over the plate the Cubs swung in vain at it. Eleven struck out, while only two hit safely. Tolson and Taylor connected for singles following an error in the sixth inning for the only Cub run.

The Cardinals, who have done most of the heavy hitting so far, drove Guy Bush from the mound with 11 hits in five innings and continued their mauling against Lonnie Warneke and Lynn Nelson, a pair of recruit right-handers.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, with old Ira Flagstead in the lead, did some timely hitting against Jakie May to take their third victory in four starts from the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 3. Flagstead hit a single, a triple and two doubles in five times at bat. Jess Petty, though wild at times was effective on the mound for the Pirates. Ethan Allen's second successive home run and a pinch double by Harry Heilmann brought the Cincinnati runs.

With Wesley Ferrell, young right-hander, taking up his good mound work where he left off last season, the Cleveland Indians handed the Detroit Tigers their first defeat of the season. The score was 7 to 1. Ferrell did not allow more than one hit an inning until the ninth. The Indians were able to bunch hits off Ownie Carroll and were aided considerably by the wildness of Art Herring, his successor, and Bill Rogell's four errors.

RODGERS EXTENDED TO BEAT MARTY GOLD

JACKIE'S KAYO LACKING IN CLOSE WIN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Jackie Rodgers' knockout reputation suffered further deflation last night, in the Moose Temple ring, when he not only failed to stop the veteran flyweight of Philadelphia, Marty Gold, in 10 rounds, but also was unable to drop him and had to step out to win the decision of the referee, as the judges disagreed. Less than two weeks ago, after piling up eight straight knockout victories, Rodgers lost to Archie Bell at Motor Square Garden in a bout in which he was sadly outboxed.

The crowd booed the decision lustily last night because it was with the underdog and was won over by Gold's workmanlike exhibition against an announced difference of three pounds in weight, which seemed like much more in the ring. However, the verdict was fair. It was Rodgers' fight on his forcing tactics and continual body hammering and Gold had to be content with what moral triumph there was in going the route against his reputed man-killer opponent. Judge Jock Simco voted for Gold as the winner, and Judge Red Robinson, with the referee, for Rodgers.

ASKS RETURN BOUT

After the battle, Gold admitted this was his first bout in six months and said he would like to box Rodgers again any time and promised to do even better with this bout under his belt. He said Rodgers never hurt him even with his best punches in the early rounds.

After two fairly close opening rounds, Rodgers became the pacesetter and won the next five rounds in a row as Gold appeared to gradually tire, although boxing well. In the sixth round, Jackie made Gold sag on the ropes from a body smash after weakening him with a constant pounding in the clinches. Gold came back to outgeneral Jackie in the eighth round and snipe his way to an even break, and he took the play away from Rodgers in the ninth by carrying the fight from the opening bell and forcing him to break ground. He tired from the rally, however, and Jackie had him tincanning awaiting the final bell in the last round.

Gold impressed with his generalship and ability to shake off Rodgers' best punches and tie him up in the clinches and also his skill in jabbing Jackie back off balance and occasionally nailing him with clean rights to the body or head. Rodgers, on the other hand, seemed to droop in his fighting from time to time, becoming discouraged at his failure to score effectively. He lacked the zip that marked his work before being messed around by Bell.

The announced weights were 123¼ pounds for Rodgers and 120¼ for Gold at 3 p. m.

SMACKEY STOPS ROBERTS

Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, turned in one of the best fights of his career to win by a technical knockout over Hans Roberts, the German, of Brookline, in the fifth round of a scheduled six-round semi-final. Roberts, who had an edge of eight pounds, scaling 144½ against 136½, never had a chance after the first round, as Smackey met his rushes with straight punches to the head and body, finally weakening him and dropping him with a right to the jaw for a count of nine in the third round and punching him from rope to rope until the bell intervened. Roberts got safely through the fourth round, but, in the fifth, again weakened under a body attack, and when his guard went down, was floored with another right to the jaw. He got up dazed at the count of seven and the referee stepped in and saved him from further punishment.

Don Frazier, Cuban featherweight, of the North Side, and formerly of Chicago, received an unearned referee's decision over Andy Stahura, veteran of Braddock, in the six-round decision bout. Stahura floored Frazier for a count of nine in the second round and also wound up by taking the sixth round easily, after losing the third, fourth and fifth. Judge Robinson voted for a draw and Judge Jock Simco for Stahura. Frazier weighed 125½ pounds and Stahura 127½.

FIRST BOUT THRILLER

The opening bout provided the best action of the night and saw Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, 137½ pounds, win by a technical knockout over Roger O'Brien, of Chicago, 138¼, in the second round. Both were down trice for counts in the first round, and O'Brien went down for nine and was down again when the referee stopped it in the second round.

Joe Keally refereed all of the bouts, Red Robinson and Jock Simco did the judging, A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers, and Bill Schuster was the announcer. Battling Ginzy and Bobby Young will be the principals in the main bout next Friday night. The attendance last night was fair, despite the fact that the show was staged on Good Friday.

QUINTERO WINS

TAMPA, Fla., April 19.—(AP.)—Manuel Quintero, 142, Tampa, won the referee's decision over Pee Wee Farrell, Grand Rapids, here last night in their 10-round bout.

KOSKI FAVORED

BOSTON, April 19.—(AP.)—Forgetting his previous disappointing performances, the experts last night selected Karl Koski, the New York holder of the American marathon championship title, as the most likely of the 215 long-distance runners entered to win the thirty-fourth annual Boston marathon today.

BOWEN TESTS SIMPSON

star of the Pitt squad, will take special pains in his broad jumping and will attempt to lower the tri-state district record for the event. He won the indoor I. C. A. A. A. A. championship during the past indoor campaign and set a new record for the lead. Utterback has done 24 feet.

OHIO STATE FAVORED

The better-distributed strength and balance of the visitors makes them a favorite today. Neither squad claims any untoward power in the field events, and with close to or an even break in these contests, Pitt may be able to hold State better than one to two.

Backing Bowen, Knoblock and Utterback in their efforts to make it a tough afternoon for the Bucks will be Wid Harris, Monheim, Vitulla and Doverspike, sprinters; Jerpe, Alberts and Caesar, middle and distance runners; Goodwin in the hurdles, and Les Cohen, Lamphear, Connell and McConnell in the field events.

The meet is scheduled to get under way promptly at 2:30 p. m.

BIG MEET CARDED

The Geneva interscholastics scheduled for Saturday of next week at Beaver Falls looms as an important district athletic event. Fifty-two schools are entered with some 800 athletes to participate.

Some of the larger schools entered are: New Castle, Westinghouse, Butler, Sharon, Central High, Erie, Wells High, Steubenville, Wilkinsburg, Wheeling, Shady Side Academy, Peabody, Pittsburgh Catholic, Fifth Avenue and Oliver.

Competition is to be divided into three classes, depending upon the size of the student body represented. There will also be some special prep school events.

Phils Release Susce, Daily to Buffalo

NEW YORK, April 19.—Manager Burt Shotton, of the Philadelphia Phillies, yesterday announced the release of Catcher George Susce, Pittsburgh product, and Pitcher Sam Daily, on option, to Buffalo. The release of the two players cut the Phillies' squad to 25 men.

Long's Sport Comment

18 have been played and 15 have been postponed on account of rain, wet grounds or cold weather. Six out of 16 games have been blocked in the National and nine out of 17 in the American. Only four clubs—the Pirates, Reds, Cubs and Cards—have escaped a cancellation.

THE winning of four National women's golf championships in the same year is the task that Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, formerly of Pittsburgh, has cut out for herself. She will undertake the first step in the British championship at Formby, starting May 12, and will remain over for the Scotch title event at Turnberry early in June. Then she will return to her home course in Philadelphia to prepare for the Canadian championship tournament, and will finish up in the American championship competition in California, opening October 13. As Dorothy Campbell, Mrs. Hurd held the British championship several years ago, and is the only feminine golfer who has held the American, British and Canadian titles. However, she did not win them in the same year. Mrs. Hurd arrived in England this week. She will not play on Glenna Collett's team in the match between America and England at Sunningdale on May 1, and will be merely a spectator. She was invited to make the trip as a member of the American team but said she felt that if she accepted she would be keeping one of the younger American players at home.

Young Eppy no longer looks like a retired brewer.....He has shed 34 pounds in the last eight and one-half months and is down from 216 pounds to 182 and is thoroughly sold on this reduction idea so long as it doesn't extend to his bankroll.....George Panka, the Big Slovak man, of Homestead, and the Pittsburgh district's best heavyweight bet, claims he has nine uncles and 20 cousins in Newark, N. J., and plans to spend some time visiting with them when he goes to New York to box on the Sharkey-Schmeling card in June.....The Southern California Trojans are being picked to win the intercollegiate track and field championships this spring.....That title has developed a habit of going to the Far Coast in recent years.....Stanford will be another strong contender and one of the side features will be a resumption of the duel for sprint honors between Hector Dyer, of Stanford, and Frank Wyckoff, of Southern Cal.....Floyd Fitzsimmons, the Mid-West promoter and pal of Jack Dempsey, says the first big fight he saw was between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jeff Thorne in Chicago, back in the gay '90s.....Bits of lumber of no mean proportions are Babe Ruth's bats and Primo Carnera's walking sticks.....Give Burleigh Grimes a hand for the sporting manner in which he has accepted his fate in being shunted to the Boston Braves.....A fellow with all of his recent worries might be pardoned if he got off a sour note or two, but all he has had to say has been in the most honeyed phrases.....Proving that he has learned to lose as gracefully as he has been accustomed to win.....That's saying a lot for a professional athlete.....It's expected of the amateurs.....Nothing succeeds like practice.....That's why Quintin Romero-Rojas still haunts the New York gyms and works out new falls for bouts to come.....One of the most sensible and likeable of the local boxers is Sammy Paris, the young Jewish bantamweight, of the Hill.....And he's a smart performer in the ring, too, with a gradually increasing army of followers.....Larry French is all in favor of keeping those American Leaguers in that minor league, especially Bob Meusel, former Yank, who blasted his chances of pitching a no-hit game in the seventh inning at Cincinnati the other day.....In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.....Which is one of the reasons Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, has not been himself in recent bouts.....He is going away to the country to forget and rebuild for a comeback following his knockout defeat by Young Saylor in the Moose Temple last week.....He plans to work hard, to plow and dig ditches and harden himself generally for a return bout with Saylor in about a month.....Which is taking away nothing from Saylor, who has been going in great style recently.....But Mickey has his own story, and affair of the heart.—HARRY KECK.

O'SHEA NAMED PILOT

By TOM BIRKS.

Pat O'Shea, popular Oakland thirdbaseman, was officially named as manager of the St. John's club of the City League by the officials of the club last evening. George Walsh was named business manager at the same time, and, with a meeting scheduled tomorrow afternoon, the makeup of the team may be announced.

Sandlotters feel that the Saints have made a ten-strike in getting the popular Oakland boy to run the club on the playing field. O'Shea, next to Heinie Boll, is the best thirdbaseman in the district. He is a fighter from the first pitched ball.

A number of players already have reported to the Sullivan Field grounds, and it may be stated that this is one season when St. John's players will have to hustle to stay with the club.

For many years O'Shea was a regular on the Cathedral Chapel team of Oakland; when that club disbanded he joined the Jimmy Smith club.

We predict that Sullivan Field will see a winner this season. O'Shea has called a practice session for tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, and all of last season's players and any new men wishing a tryout should be on hand.

Eddie Kelley will play center field for Homewood-Brushton in the West Penn League this season. Since Ollie Carnegie is going to play with Dormont, Manager Hank Daly had to hunt another fielder. Kelley roamed the same spot two years ago. Hadley also was signed to play first base. Paul Hodder, formerly of Wilmerding, is reported to be after the first base job.

PERRY DEL VECCHIO

Greensburg Country Club.

Before we go any further—here's some good news. Last year Perry Del Vecchio, pro-greenkeeper at the Greensburg Country Club, was 14 pounds under weight and was troubled with a bad right eye, being forced to use glasses. This year he's feeling great and anticipates a big season! Perry's the chap who has such a splendid record around here, don't you know. He was West Penn champion in 1927 and 1928, and tied for second last year. In 1927 he finished tenth in the national open at Oakmont, and in 1928, in the national P. G. A. at Baltimore, he went as far as the quarter finals before he was eliminated by Horton Smith. Del Vecchio started as a caddie at the Oakmont Country Club when he was 10 years old. He worked himself from a beginner to the important post of being "steady caddie" for William C. Fownes, Jr., former president of the U. S. G. A. Perry improved right along and got a job with Emil Loeffler, Oakmont's pro-greenkeeper. He worked with Loeffler at greenkeeping for six years and it was through Emil he succeeded his position as greenkeeper at Greensburg. He's been at his present club six years, four as greenkeeper, two as pro-greenkeeper. He likes Greensburg very much and likes the folks he's working for.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

THE LOWDOWN ON PIRATES

By THE BENCHWARMER.

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—Well, folks, I guess we showed a lot of class against these Reds, didn't we? But it looks bad for some of us rookies getting in there with Flaggy cuttin' up the way he is. I saw him play a few times when he was with the Red Sox, and I believe he looks even better now than he did then. There isn't anything he can't do and besides he's one of the best hustlers on the club. Everybody on the bench gave Jewel a hand for the way he handled the big spot in the game. Jess wasn't getting battered, but he was losing some of his stuff in the eighth and Steve was all warmed up. Jewel walked out to the mound and talked things over with Petty in a nice way. He let him know he wasn't quittin' on him and Jess realized it was a smart move to change pitchers. In came Steve, and he certainly did get out the dinger on the Reds. The gang all figured that Rolly Hemsley did a lot to save the game in the fifth when he sprinted down the third base line for May's bunt and then slapped the ball to Charley Engle's glove for a force play. Talk about a championship play—you could see the Reds falling right off their bench when Rolly and Charley put over that one. The game was tied at the time and the Reds had men on second and first with none out. Larry French was good company today on account of his victory of yesterday.

I tried to get a rise out of Leo Durocher when he went into the game, but the American Leaguer didn't pay much attention to me. I guess the way the fans were razzing the Reds, Durocher figured he'd better keep his mind on the game or they'd all be hoppin' on him. Those Red fans are gonna be tough if the team doesn't start to winnin'. Well, we're all hopin' they start to winnin' today because the Cubs are over there and you know those Cubs are gonna be 'arder to beat out than the Pirates.

Hurler Strikes Out Ten Men in Row

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 19.—(AP.)—Percy Dixon, Gordon Institute baseball pitcher, struck out every man on the Georgia Military College lineup in succession and one of them twice yesterday. The 10 men, downed in rotation at the start, gave the young Gordon hurler a credit of 17 strikeouts during the game. He was nicked for two hits, of the minor kind, and no runs. His team won, 1 to 0.

"Lonsome Like"

The scene is laid in a Lancastershire cottage where an old woman lives alone. She is crippled and unable to do her own work, so the neighbors come in to help her from time to time.

As the scene opens a young girl is with her. A young awkward boy who has recently lost his mother comes in looking for a girl. He has been following her for weeks trying to get up enough nerve to propose to her.

The girl refuses him because he is more or less the laughing-stock of the town, being strong of arm, but weak of mind. He converses with the old lady about his disappointment, and she reminds him so much of his own mother that he asks her to come and live with him to fill the empty spot her mother has left in his life.

FOURTH BULLET WOUND FOUND

CHARLEROI, Pa., April 19.—A new sensation in the shooting of Mrs. Katherine LaCava, 65, 109 Fallowfield avenue, on April 9, at her home was disclosed today from the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, where the woman is a patient.

Another bullet wound, with the ball lodged behind the left eye in the brain wall, was found following an X-Ray examination. Hospital surgeons declared that the bullet is inaccessible and to attempt its removal would likely prove fatal.

This is the fourth bullet which took effect in the aged woman's head. One ball was removed from the left temple, another .32 calibre slug was taken from the back of her head, a third bullet grazed her cheek.

Mrs. Rose LaCava, 18, the wounded woman's daughter-in-law, and wife of Anthony LaCava, a glassworker, who was to have been given a hearing on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, in connection with the attack, is still being held in the county jail.

The shooting occurred in the elder Mrs. LaCava's bedroom. Mrs. Rose LaCava and her mother-in-law had quarreled over the ownership of a $3 bed-spread.

Ardeth Weakly Protests When Ken Kisses Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ardeth Carroll is being wooed by Neil Burke, who rooms with her Aunt Stella. Almost every night when she returns home from work she finds him waiting in the hall for her, and he often causes her to be late for dinner. Aunt Stella gets angered and scolds Ardeth for holding back the meals. Ardeth feels depressed. Ardeth goes for a machine ride with Neil. Passing through a park Ardeth gazes at Kent Gleason, a college football player whom she knows to see. Neil shows signs of jealousy. Later when Neil kisses her Ardeth realizes that she does not love him. Jeanette Parker, society girl, calls at the store to see Ardeth. Jeanette is revengeful against her own sister, Cecile, who is taking the spotlight of prominence from her. As an excuse to shun social events, Jeanette plans to open a specialty shop. Ardeth goes to work for her. Neil begs Ardeth to marry him, but she refuses. Gleason visits the shop and is introduced to Ardeth by Jeanette. Ken calls at the shop for Ardeth and takes her home in his machine. Ken asks Ardeth to visit his houseboat with him. Two others who were to go along back out.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

ACROSS the bay from San Francisco the Alameda coastline stretches itself to the south in a vast salt marsh. An empty, fascinating country, brooding under eternal silence. The only habitations are lonely little wooden shacks stuck up on stilts in the mud, used for duck shooting parties or small wooden arks anchored on the edges of the innumerable sloughs which cut the flats into a grey picture puzzle.

Half hidden in the saw-grass on the edge of one such slough was the houseboat which Ken and Tom Corbett called their "duck shack." Most of the time it lay bleaching alone in the sunny stillness—so deserted that gulls and coots and even the wild ducks had come to regard it as part of the landscape.

But today the bird life had fled in panic. The mud hens had waded away in scandalized agitation and seagulls had a knowing air as they circled its roof. The warped little ark had been invaded by a tall laughing fellow and a slim girl in a sport dress.

A golden day on the marshes. A day underlaid with a thrilling sense of drama.

"Glad you came, Moth?"

Her look was his answer.

When Ken had told of Jeanette's absence desolation unbearable had swept Ardeth. She was like a disappointed child. Her lovely day—her beautiful day—snatched away at the last minute!

Then came angry rebellion. She'd go with Ken anyway! Suppose there were but the two of them? People weren't prudish about such things any more! She would go—she would!

They were defiantly gay coming over on the ferry boat, thrilling to a daring sense of romance.

Blue sky—blue sky—and the sun gleaming on the man's uncovered head. There was a little crease in his thick hair where the hat brim had pressed a crease which would just hold her finger, thought the girl dreamily. Then she had given a little startled laugh at the thought and would not tell him why she laughed.

Ardeth Thrilled

This golden day dropped into her lap far removed from the other gray days of the week. Nothing mattered—Aunt Stella's nagging—Neil's jealousy—Cecile Parker—not even tomorrow which would put the world between them again. Nothing mattered, while she was here with Ken on this golden day!

The thrilling sense of intimacy deepened when they left the boat and returned from the city. The country road they followed gave way to a salt-caked track winding through the salt marsh. Wide sky—wide flat—the blue car creeping along with Ken and herself.

When they reached the ark they were filled with the wild spirits of children. Ardeth exclaimed over it all—the shabby cabin with its cushioned seat rambling around the room. The tiny kitchen, its one window looking over miles of marsh. The warped floor boards of the sun-flooded deck and the soft lipping of water as the tide seeped up the slough.

She tied a huge flour sack dishtowel under her armpits and helped Ken prepare lunch on the rusty wood stove. From the back of the car Ken produced a thick beefsteak. A jar of potato salad. French bread—butter—cheese. A box of French pastry had been badly jammed in the trip over and sent them into gales of laughter.

It was easy to laugh today. Just the sight of Ken with a dishtowel tied about his neck, solemnly licking whipped cream from his fingertips was sufficient to move the girl to tender ridicule.

Eat on Deck

They were throbbingly aware of each other's presence. Aware of the empty miles which closed them here together. They combatted their secret excitement with an almost hectic gayety.

They burned their fingers and broke plates. They dropped forks and dived for them at the same moment so their heads came smartly together. They salted the salad too much and entirely forgot to season the steak.

Ardeth cut her finger and Ken bound it with a strip of clean dishtowel. That moment of close contact, when he held her hand in his own silenced the man's high spirits and sent the blood surging through his body.

They ate lunch on the shady side of the deck overlooking the blue bay. Ken was in hilarious spirits again. He played waiter, hanging a napkin over his arm and waving Ardeth to her seat with an elaborate flourish.

"Ham, lamb, ram, sheep or mutton? Name yer animal, laddy! The steak is the piece of resistance if you bend it we can't take it back!"

After luncheon they cleared the table, stacked the clean plates back on the kitchen shelves and went out again onto the deck.

Ardeth flung herself on a rattan couch, piled with faded cushions. Ken perched on the rail and lit a cigaret.

At first they talked easily. Gay, inconsequential chatter—of the shop — of Jeanette — Ken told incidents of his college days. He spoke of Tom Corbett, who owned the ark with him.

Protests Kiss

"We roomed together at the university. Tom's a prince of a fellow. I'll bring him in sometime to meet you. I've an idea Jeanette likes him pretty well. Maybe if he'd come today Jennie would have forgot to remember her house party. Oh well we don't miss 'em do we, Moth?"

Her gaze wavered. Broke away from his in confusion. She gave a shaky little laugh.

"I should say not! It's their loss."

And suddenly she could not go on.

Silence growing between them. Spreading. The wide sunflooded country was tremulous with expectancy. The air between them ached with unspoken words.

She felt the weight of Ken's gaze, but found, of a sudden, that she could not lift her lashes. Her heart set up a rapid pounding.

Ken had slipped from the rail. He came over—seated himself beside her on the couch.

"Oh — no!" Her own voice in an unconvincing little gasp just before his lips crushed down on her own in a kiss which seemed to draw her heart between her lips.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—(INS.)—A sentence of seven years in Folsom Penitentiary awaited Jack Noonan, 26 today. D. A. R. INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, April 19 (INS.)—The thirty-ninth continental congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution drew to a busy close today with 10 national officers to be installed and newly elected regents from 29 states and two foreign countries to be confirmed during the concluding sessions. Tonight the nearly 4,000 delegates will assemble for a farewell dinner.

Delegates came from every state in the union and four foreign countries. The sessions, opening last Monday, were unexpectedly tumultuous, marked by the brief airing of numerous controversial issues which resulted finally in adoption of a resolution barring religion, prohibition and politics from future deliberations.

The organization expressed favor for an American policy of no entangling alliances and an adequate national defense. President Hoover, who welcomed the delegates with an address, had advocated American membership in the League Court and moderation in armaments.

CLUE TO KILLER SEEN IN HOLDUP

CHICAGO, April 19.—(INS.)—Armed with a description of the burglar sought in the ribbon murder of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, police today searched for a bandit who engineered a $1,800 holdup here last night in which one of the victims was Jane Abbey, 15-year-old daughter of Gov. Emerson's secretary, F. L. Abbey.

Entering an apartment house lobby, Miss Abbey and Mrs. Adele Smith were confronted by a pale-faced bandit who sprang at them, gun in hand.

At the bandit's command Mrs. Smith gave up her purse containing two rings valued at $1,700 and $100 in cash. The bandit then seized Miss Abbey's purse and fled.

Robber Calls Again And Gets $5 More

E. Tick, who conducts a laundry shop at 2234 Center avenue, told police today that he was held up and robbed of $5 in his shop last night by a Negro.

What's more, Tick said, it was the same holdup man who took $7 from him the previous night.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Abracadabra!"

The Gibbs establishment was the "De Luxe Eating and Amusement Parlors."

There were many such in Harlem but Wilson Gibbs was inclined to boast that outside of night clubs, his place had the most "class" in all Harlem. He was probably within bounds in so doing.

The "eating" portion of his establishment provided cozy tables, cleanliness and Mammy Magoo as chef.

Ask any Harlemite up in that vicinity about Mammy Magoo and he will unconsciously smack his lips and grin in memory of her culinary deftness.

The "amusement" parlors in Wilson Gibbs' establishment consisted of a fair-sized pool room with three tables and a counter for smokes and soda pop. Gibbs took no chances with harder stuff. Back of the pool room was the "card room," so called. The rattle of the bones, however, and the low moan of some "shooters" calling on the Goddess of Fortune and telling her that "baby needs shoes" were heard as frequently as the ruffle of cards in a poker game.

Wilson Gibbs posed at his front door conscious and prideful of his Springtime raiment.

A faint sizzling sound from within, a delectable aroma of pork and lamb stew and of frying fish caused Gibbs to smile serenely—as did the click of pool balls. It all meant profit to Wilson Gibbs.

He nodded to this one and that one, lifted his buff-hued new lid to lady friends or waved a hand to certain passing politicians of the district.

Miss Trissie's Guest

Miss Trissie White came along One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street on her way to a cafe where she sold cigars and cigarets, when she wasn't making change in the cashier's cage.

Wilson Gibbs' new hat came off with a wide sweep.

"Evenin', Miss Trissie."

"Evenin,' Mister Gibbs." Trissie paused and regarded Gibbs, who appreciated it. "Mmm-mmm, what clothin' sto' you advertisin'?"

"Just a little raiment I got for myself, you 'prove?"

"Swell."

"How about you an' me goin' some place tomorrer?"

"Sorry, Wilson, but I can't go. Mama's got a guest from Savannah and I got to sorter show him 'round."

A slight frown clouded the formerly serene Gibbs brow.

"You don't mean that funny country hick I seen you with yesterday, does you?"

"If you had all the money he's toted in them clo'es, you'd be surprised."

"I got money enough," Gibbs answered, curtly, but curiosity prevailed. He smiled at Trissie. "Who is he an' what 'bout him?"

"He is Mister Hanover Boyd and that granddaddy you was tryin' to be smart about left him a farm and plenty money in the bank. Mister Boyd was takin' care of his granddaddy for three fo' years and he ain't bothered none 'bout clo'es. Yo' don't dress up none on a farm."

Wilson Gibbs was after information. He went about it cleverly.

"Well, well," he paused to laugh. "It's sure funny an' amazin' how them country hicks gets fifty or a hun'red dollars together and thinks they's got money. I s'pose this here Mister Hanover Boyd is 'like that."

"Be sensible, Wilson Gibbs," Trissie cried angrily. "This Mister Boyd is got plenty money, thousan's an' thousan's, besides the big farm he c'n sell for five thousan's spot cash."

"So? Well, that's nice, Miss Trissie, but you oughtn't let him he laffed at, you ought to tell him how to dress up so's nobody won't sell him no gold bricks."

Gibbs Offers Aid

"That's an idea—I'll speak to him. I got to go 'round with him an' I ruther he look citified."

"You bring him over to me, Trissie. I'll take him where I get my clo'es. We'll take that country hick look offen him."

Trissie promised.

Wilson Gibbs stepped inside his establishment, passed through the eating parlor, the poolroom and into the card room at the rear with its two hidden exits to be used in the event of visits from John Law anent crap shooting.

Clayton Burgess and Sam Jackson were there, playing cribbage at 10 cents a hundred points. Gibbs sat down beside them.

"Thirty cents to the good," Sam Jackson said.

"Listen," Gibbs said. "Trissie White's folks is got a rich guest, a country hick."

"Thousan's an' thousan's."

"A country hick," Clayton Burgess observed, with a painted expression, "ain't got no right runnin' loose with thousan's an' thousan's."

"He ain't gonna. I'm bringin' him here to show him city ways. 'Course I can't set in no games with yo,' because I aim to marry Trissie befo' long an' she'd be mad if I skinned her guest of his thousan's. But if you boys done it why I couldn't help that. Seein' as I found him an' have gotta stake you, I'll let you boys split 30 and I'll take 70."

They started to squawk.

"But we knows th' tricks, Wilson!" Jackson protested.

"I bring in th' country hick ready for pickin' an' I stake you to th' necessary coin for to start th' game. If we take him for, say three thousan' in one night, you gets almost five hun'red per each. Take it or leave it—I know—"

"We take it," Jackson said.

The following Monday Trissie White brought Hanover Boyd over and introduced him to Wilson Gibbs.

Hanover's clothes were decidedly rusty and antique. Hanover's voice had a lazy drawl. He ate of Mammy Magoo's fried fish and corn buns and drank her coffee, declaring himself amazed. He didn't think there was any such eating north of the Carolinas.

Hanover Is Introduced

Finally they drifted into the card room. Boyd was introduced to Messrs. Burgess and Jackson.

He accepted a drink of fairly good liquor and listened to Jackson, who was the glibbest, tell how he always wanted to live the free life of a farmer.

"Only thing I'd miss would be geen'l fren's to play me a few poker games with now'n then," Jackson said.

"That's right, Brother Jackson. I don't get me to no time nor opportunity for poker an' I'm awful fond of it—I ain't played none for near three years."

"Well, well, would you believe it!" exclaimed Wilson Gibbs. "You better indulge yourself with these gentlemen, Mr. Boyd, for a hour or so whilst I look after some business affairs."

And so the game was on.

"I don't s'pose you'd take no offense, Mister Boyd, when I say I understan' 'bout you bein' a farmer and not flush with much cash—so s'pose we play for small stakes," Jackson remarked.

"Who say I ain't got money?" Boyd demanded.

"No offense, no offense, suit yo'self," Jackson said, hastily, and winked at Burgess. His ruse seemed to have worked.

Hanover Boyd went away from the Gibbs establishment that night with $200 winnings. He was elated and promised to be back the next night.

"It worked swell," Gibbs said, approvingly. "Tomorrow you boys flash the thousan' cash I'm lendin' you an' we'll clean him."

He lost and won and then lost more.

"Abracadabra!" he said as he dealt himself the last card.

"What's that mean?" Jackson asked.

"Lucky word—if you says it first off," Boyd informed him.

Boyd won the pot, a fat one.

He won three more in succession. On the fourth deal it was Jackson who yelled "Abracadabra!" He yelled it just as he saw Boyd start to deal.

Jackson Wins

Jackson won the pot.

"Sure one swell word," he remarked. He winked at Burgess and that meant that the next hand would be "fixed."

The wagers ran high and higher, even before the draw, for they had given Boyd three queens to draw from.

After the draw the betting increased until there was in the pot the two thousand Gibbs had staked them. Boyd's thousand and about three hundred more they had dug up amongst them.

Somebody gave Wilson Gibbs the office and he came in to watch.

Jackson was nervous. Burgess was to have given him four aces and he had only three. He tried to signal Burgess, but that worthy was sitting on top of the world, with four jacks, and he knew that Boyd had been given three queens, a ten and trey.

Hanover Boyd looked at the clock.

"That word ain't no good after midnight," he said. He put down four queens and an ace!

Feebly did Mr. Gibbs congratulate Mr. Boyd, who said he would be back the next night.

After he was gone there was a hot session. Messrs. Burgess and Jackson each swore the other blundered. They would get it all back the next night, they said.

Late the next day as Wilson Gibbs stood in the doorway of his establishment a taxi stopped at the curb. Out got Trissie and a most resplendent gentleman.

"Permit me to introduce my wife, th' former Miss Trissie White," said the resplendent gentleman. Trissie giggled.

The sartorially perfect gentleman was none other than Mister Hanover Boyd.

"We is just married and is goin' to California on our honeymoon," Trissie explained, "you see Mister Boyd he has been workin' as valet and stage helper for Heldermann, the worl' famous magician. He been restin' up and now he's goin' to th' coast to make a movie and we is goin' with him. Mister Boyd he knows all th' card tricks what Heldermann ever do on th' stage."

Wha—what say?" gasped Wilson Gibbs.

"I says 'Abracadabra,'" murmured Mister Hanover Boyd, and then he helped his bride into the taxi and they disappeared.

MOUSE VOLUNTEERS TO AID FRISBY IN REBUS

WASHINGTON — One of the most interesting experiments known to science was launched here last night, when Horace Frisby started on an eighteen-day diet with a white mouse. The mouse, Frisby explained, will not be permitted to eat sweets or highly spiced pastry or desserts. At the end of the period the mouse will be weighed, and if it tips the delicate scales at a point beyond that which common sense would indicate harm to the human system, Congressman Frisby will introduce a bill to amend the Eighteenth Amendment making it illegal to seel, transport or possess fattening sweets, pies, cakes or pastry within the bounds of decency.

Mayor's Proclamation Assures Daylight Time

Mayor Charles H. Kline has issued the usual proclamation whereby Pittsburgh adopts daylight saving time one week from tomorrow. He had been requested to do so by a committee representing the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association. The action is in line with custom in most of the larger cities, in which uniformity of time makes for convenience in the transaction of business between centers of finance and industry.

Thousands employed in these cities find daylight saving a great boon, giving them longer recreational hours in the evening. Other thousands claim it is a great nuisance, especially those who go to work early, often when it is dark at a time it would be daylight under standard time. Some parents object to daylight time because children do not want to go to bed while it is still daylight, which makes it difficult to get them up in time for school and permit sufficient time for rest.

Each year there is debate about the wisdom of adopting daylight saving time, but those favoring it seem greatly in the majority. This year the period of its use will be from 2 o'clock Sunday morning, April 27, until the same hour September 28.

Girls' Work Institute Will Be Held on Tuesday

An important meeting to be held here next week will be the fourth institute on girls' work in the William Penn Hotel under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Girls' Conference. The routine, scheduled for Tuesday, includes a luncheon, to be addressed by Prof. Henry M. Busch, of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, round tables, throughout the afternoon, and dinner at which an address will be delivered by Dr. Anita Muhl, psychiatrist.

The various round tables in the afternoon will take up topics relating to group activities with relationship to the girl as well as a general view of things and the trend of thought affecting girl life, including education, recreation, working conditions, social angles and problems of adolescence. Physicians and educators are to lead discussions.

The purpose, we assume, is to marshall the essential facts of guidance that will give the girl a chance to develop her individuality without danger to herself or to society. Considering the many new influences that are constantly arising in our modern life, such a study certainly is highly important.

Promotion of Education Is a Duty of the Nation

The Hearst publications, speaking for some thirty million readers in all parts of the United States, respectfully urge the Congress to pass the education bill now before it.

It would put education in the cabinet on an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor.

It would co-ordinate the educational activities of the federal government, now scattered in four executive departments and six independent agencies without any general directing head.

Just as the Department of Agriculture conducts investigations on all agricultural matters to promote agriculture in the several states, so the proposed Department of Education would conduct investigations on all educational matters to promote education in the several states.

Just as the Department of Commerce investigates commercial systems and administration for the sake of improvement and efficiency, so the Department of Education would investigate school accounting systems and administration for the same purpose.

Just as the Department of Labor inquires into the conditions under which men and women work, with a view to encouraging the improvement of those conditions, so the proposed Department of Education would inquire into the training requirements of various businesses, professions, trades, and crafts in connection with courses of studies in the public schools.

Just as the Departments of Agriculture, Labor and Commerce are furnishing reliable and accurate information on their respective problems to the people of the several states, so the proposed Department of Education would serve the public schools of the several states.

Putting agriculture, commerce and labor in the President's cabinet did not deprive a single state of the control within its borders of agriculture, commerce or labor.

Neither would putting education in the President's cabinet deprive the school authorities of a single state of their control of education.

Control of education is a sovereign function of the state, and that control is guaranteed to the states by Article X of the Constitution.

But the promotion of education is both a state and federal duty. And its importance as a national duty was emphasized by Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln.

President Coolidge was only applying to modern needs their teachings in regard to education when he urged the Congress to establish a federal Department of Education with a secretary in the President's cabinet.

Calvin Coolidge believed the promotion of education to be a fundamental national activity "WORTHY OF A SEPARATE DEPARTMENT AND A PLACE IN THE CABINET."

Wouldn't failure to pass the education bill at the current session show the Congress not only neglectful of the desires of the public, but also indifferent to the advice and counsel of the great American Presidents, who held THE PROMOTION OF EDUCATION TO BE AS MUCH THE DUTY OF THE NATION AS OF THE SEVERAL STATES?

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Co-Educational Politics

THE Illinois senatorial scrimmage between Ruth Hanna McCormick and Ham Lewis should make a yard of history.

"Bugs" Baer

Ham is nothing if not a gentleman and a lady can have the seat if she gets there first.

When we worked in Washington Ham was famous for his vests, his spats and his whiskers which were as pink as an Italian sunset on a damp day.

Ham's beard was a carefully barbecued mop which he trimmed and trellised like a sunken garden. He was such a neat, tidy man that we figured he wore waterwings in the bathtub.

Whenever the reactionaries polled the caucus Ham just threw back his lapels and allowed his striped vest to proclaim the fact that he was a progressive.

We met Mrs. McCormick while she was covering the Kansas City convention. She is keen, alert and intelligent. That is enough to hamper anybody trying to become a Senator.

There will be no mud slinging between the two Illinois contestants unless it is disguised as beauty clay.

A politician is handcuffed if he cannot refer to his opponent as a big turtle-eyed, yakaboo with a police record longer than a well-digger's shovel and a humanitarian desire to run flowers and rare porcelain through a sausage machine.

But there will be none of that oratorical goulash in this campaign career. She will tell her audience that she approves of Ham getting a seat in the Senate provided that it's in the rumble.

She will say that Ham is tall, handsome and manly and that it breaks her heart to break his nose. You can get more with sugar than you can with horseradish but who wants sugar on their oysters?

And one happy feature will be the absence of shooting and slugging at the Illinois polls. All election judges and challengers will be instructed to tap voters on the shoulders lightly with fairy wands. And as the twitching hour of midnight approaches, the crystal chariot becomes a pumpkin again, and the beautiful hosses change back into little white mice, either Ham or Ruth will be the next delegate to Washington with full privileges to frank laundry or lingerie back home at government expense.

We are glad that Ruthie is skipping for the Senate. This seems to be a man's world simply because Columbus discovered it. But don't forget that it was Isabella who sold the raffle tickets.

SKY LIMIT

By Herbert Kaufman

ONE of the skyscrapers in lower Manhattan has leased the sunlight and air above an adjoining property for $25,000 a year—which both emphasizes the perpendicular value of real estate, and further verifies the axiom that gold is where you look for it.

Walter Chrysler is setting up housekeeping atop the tower of his new office building. The little bungalow in which he used to live when working as a round-house mechanic, will get quite a kick out of that.

So should those back-home wiseacres who thought he had lost his mind and his savings, when Chrysler returned from a pioneer automobile show with one of the most expensive machines on the market, and tore it apart to find what it was all about.

The knowledge he derived from that investigation furnished corner-stones for the third largest motor car concern on earth and the highest monument ever reared to personal prowess.

EVERY trans-Atlantic liner should assemble its immigrant passengers on deck, as soon as the Chrysler building is sighted, and inform intending citizens that there stands a symbol of the fortunes that may still be gathered from the streets—and highways of the United States, and from its clouds, too.

David Sarnoff, the steerage graduate and recent messenger boy, who conceived the radio corporation and discovered preliminary promotion funds in the pockets of imagination, is another prize exhibit of the impartial treatment which our generous democracy accords intrinsic worth and contributive effort.

The soundest briefs against communism are obtainable from the careers of those self-made thousands by whom our industrial, commercial and financial destinies are continuously captained.

Neither education nor influence can claim Sarnoff or Chrysler as debtors.

ANY of the thousands of employes who take their orders and pay, were just as qualified to seize the same opportunities.

Nobody labored under more initial handicaps—no families were humbler than theirs—and no one was ever less prepared by circumstance or contact to assume the powerful roles they occupy. They erected their ambition on bed-rock. As Ford did. And Edison. And Pupin.

They didn't waste precious time whining that all the choice sites on Success avenue were already grabbed by earlier starters, but surveyed possibility until they located virgin thoroughfares for transportation, communication and electrical development, and created fresh wealth out of stuffs that had never before yielded revenues.

THE nineteenth century wouldn't have half so many billions to spend, had it set nineteenth century boundaries for wit and enterprise.

And double the number of folk would be unemployed today, if America hadn't kept all games open and left the sky as the limit for individual plays.

THE COP ON THE CORNER

AN angry man will always exercise more restraint in the presence of an armed opponent than with a defenseless enemy, peace is best guarded by preparation for war. Until disarmament is universally practiced, the security of America is most assured by a navy as competent as that of any other power.

To indorse the enlargement of our Navy is not to advocate the necessity of war as a solution of international difficulties; but rather to guarantee the avoidance of bloodshed.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

MRS. FRANCES PERKINS, New York State industrial commissioner, does not believe in "part time mothers." She thinks it's perfectly outrageous for mothers to seek jobs when they might be sitting happily at home raising three or four children, or even eight or ten.

"The troubles with American life today," says Mrs. Perkins, "is that we are practically all 'keeping up with the Joneses.' It is almost impossible for the head of the house to earn sufficient income to maintain the high standards of American living. To meet this condition, the mothers go to work . . . I can't imagine a better life than that of the mother of a large family. I do not see why the young women do not settle down to the serious business of having eight or ten children, and making a good job of it and having a lot of fun at it.

"Day nursery school, all-day sessions in school and summer schools, in my opinion, are contributory factors that have done much to destroy the home life in America. Summer camps are almost an evil, in my opinion. The idea was capitalized so money could be made on parents who desire comfort when their children want to romp about the home."

Thus Mrs. Perkins—and I haven't a doubt that countless complacent citizens, sitting in comfortable homes, will applaud her loudly. But Nora Sullivan and Hester Gingberg and Maggie Brown and Olga Swanson and little Rosa Sanguinetti won't applaud her. They'll wonder miserably—and perhaps resentfully—what Mrs. Frances Perkins would do if she stood in their shabby shoes.

Suppose her Tim were down with pneumonia and there were five little mouths to feed?

Suppose her Jim had been killed—smashed flat by a crane, down on the docks—just a month before the baby was born?

Suppose her Tom had gotten discouraged—walking the streets in bitter weather, with never a job in sight—and drifted off and away?

Suppose her Eric had gotten himself in a jam—he with his great fists and his hot fighting blood—and was taking a rap of six months over in the county jail?

Suppose her Tony was wild and weak, drank, gambled and played the ponies?

"What would she do then?" they'll say as they read her article, Nora, Hester and Maggie, Olga and little Rose Sanguinette and their thousands of sisters—"Would she then be leaving her children to starve? 'Keeping up with the Jonses,' is it? Keeping up with empty stomachs—keeping up with bare feet—keeping up with a leaky roof and a cold stove—that's the truth of it. Maybe she's wise enough, this Industrial Commissioner lady, to be picking a husband who doesn't play the ponies, or lucky enough to get one who doesn't get smashed on the dock—but for the likes of us, who have to take what we get, WHAT CHANCE IS THERE?"

The "likes of them"—they're the REAL part-time mothers. Not the restless few who want prettier clothes or easier hours—but these thousands of weary, aging mothers, or desperate young ones who fight for a job to fill some cruel need, these are the real working wives who are a bitter problem in America today. FOR THE LIKES OF THEM—WHAT CHANCE IS THERE?

Text For Today The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee.—Jeremiah xxxi:3.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THERE is, for example, a large group of species—the wolves and jackals—that are obviously very like each other; there is another group—the foxes—which also resemble each other, but which differ in a number of respects from the individuals of the first.

Each of these species-groups is called a genus (plural genera). The wolf and jackal genus is called Canis and the fox genus is called Vulpes. Sometimes a single species is so strikingly different from all other kinds of dog that it is put in a genus by itself; thus the long-legged, foxy-red "maned wolf" of Brazil and Paraguay constitutes the genus Chrysocyon.

H. G. Wells

In speaking of animals the zoologist finds it convenient to give both the generic and specific names—very much as in speaking of human individuals we often give both Christian and family names.

In order to avoid confusion, certain conventions are adopted; the name of the genus is put before the name of the species; the name of the genus is written with a capital letter, that of the species with a small letter.

Thus the common European wolf is called Canis lupus, the Indian jackal is Canis aureus, the common fox Vulpes vulpes, the long-eared fennec fox Vulpes zerda, the maned wolf Chrysocyon jubatus, and so on.

Carrying the classifying process a step further, we group the genera of dogs together to form a family, the Canidae.

This is brigaded with a number of other families, with cats and bears and hyenas and weasels and seals and a host of others, to form an order, the Carnivora; this, with a number of other orders, forms a sub-class, the placental mammals, and so on, as we have already seen.

So much for the ideal. Now for the difficulties.

We noted in the last section that the individuals composing a species are never exactly like each other. Even in the clearest, most sharply-defined species the individuals show slight variations in their color, size, instincts, and so on.

In the common European wolf, Canis lupus, for example, animals from different localities vary in length of fur, the coat being thicker in northern wolves and there is a tendency for the latter to grow to a larger size than the Southern individuals.

This particular case does not present a very puzzling problem to the systematist. There is no question of dividing the European wolf into two or more species, for the extreme types are connected together by a grading series of intermediate forms, all breeding freely together. They are simply variations within the limits of a single species.

But when we take into consideration all the wolves of the world, the problem of variation becomes more serious.

The true wolf ranges over the whole of the Northern Hemisphere from the Arctic Circle to South temperate latitudes, and apart from such "sports" as complete blackness, which may turn up anywhere, the characters of wolves vary in accordance with the climate of the particular region they inhabit.

Northern wolves, for example, are on the average larger than the southern and have a thicker and whiter coat, and in temperate zones the wolves inhabiting comparatively dry country are on the whole paler in tint than those from districts where the rainfall is heavy.

And there are variations in build and proportion. Now sometimes these differences are considerable enough to make it doubtful whether the forms should be grouped in the same species or not.

There are, for example, the American timber wolf, the pale wolves of Northwestern India, the small, short-legged Japanese wolf, the little red wolf of Texas—these and many others, all fairly distinct from the common wolf of Europe, but just similar enough to leave us in doubt whether they should be separated or left together.

Confronted with this problem, the experts differ among themselves. Some prefer to distinguish these various kinds as separate species; some include them all within the species Canis lupus and distinguish them as local races or sub-species.

Moreover, this variation is not a canine peculiarity; the foxes show it, too, and indeed nearly every wide-ranging species has its local kinds and therefore its problems for the systematist.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 19.—New York's cuisine, so turgidly—there's a word!—exploited is often a disappointment to those of us with palates whetted to the homely but appetizing fare of the small town or farm. The transplanted New Yorker makes futile searches for dishes he has learned to love.

Instead, he finds menus flossed up with warmed-over and half-baked ideas of Brillat-Savarin or others of the European chefs. Cafes that would prosper serving plain American cooking are half empty because they cling to heavy English fare or the sauced-up atrocities of the continent.

Almost everybody west of Pittsburgh has a ready taste for cornbread, yet they ask for it and receive a disdainful lift of eyebrows. Even if they are able to get it, it is made with sugar. The same snootiness accompanies a request for saltrising bread—a prime favorite of brush apes.

It has been my conviction for years that a restaurant offering a well-cooked and seasonable list of strictly American dishes would soon be turning customers away. Those from out in the hedges cast an eye over this milk and honey from Olympus and burst out crying:

CHOICE:
Pot Liquor.
Vegetable Soup
Beef Bouillon and Noodles

Baked Pork and Beans, Family Style.

Deep under Manhattan's rocky base are innumerable garnet mines. If real estate values were not more profitable, experts believe the entire island, like the diamond fields of Kimberly, would become a vast camp of garnet miners. In the American Museum of Natural History is a 9½-pound garnet uncovered during excavations in Herald Square. When the McAlpin Hotel was being built nearby many deep red stones were found. A lot at Broadway and 65th street, revealed 1,059 sizeable garnets.

A recurrent and happy dream is of walking along a leafy lane and suddenly kicking up a shower of dazzling diamonds. In no time I gather up a hatful and then begins an exciting race to get away from an ogre—the spit image of Barney Gallant. He pops out of the bushes and away we go, buckuty, buckuty.

This diamond dream, which comes to many, is realized after a fashion by a cleaning woman who belongs to a frowzy band which tidies up three night clubs in the neighborhood of the Winter Garden in the early dawn. In six years she has found a diamond bracelet, three diamond rings, several diamond-studded brooches and vanity cases under the tables. Her total rewards for returning them have been less than $100.

And mention of the Winter Garden is remindful it has gone permanently talkie and passed from the control of the Shuberts. It was the best-known haven of the leg show and also celebrated for its "Sunday concerts" and freedom to smokers. Many show chorus girls who rose to theatrical fame had their start disporting on the Winter Garden runways. There was a jovial commonness about its rowdy-howdy musical shows rarely achieved outside of slap-stick burlesque.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

"WHY write so much about faults; why not allude to some good points?" says a correspondent.

Well, it is by recognizing faults, as such, that improvement is made.

We need to be jarred in order to see as others see us.

We have more faults than virtues and it is easy to try to balance one good deed as against a half dozen evil deeds.

We enlarge upon the good things we do and deprecate the opposite kind.

The things that are expected of us as good citizens, as loyal husbands or wives, as dutiful children should not be expected to bring praise in their performance, but ought to be looked upon as the debt we owe our birthright.

None of us is likely to do too much of a commendable nature.

Most of us carry on in a pretty fair sort of way, but it would be possible to do much more for good if the right spirit were put back of it.

Don't be too easily pleased with yourself and your praiseworthy efforts.

Don't compare yourself with others and then pat yourself on the back that you have kept up as well as you have.

And why is it in making comparisons that we generally select some person whom we feel assured is far below us in the scale of good deeds.
